ON THE COVERS:

Front cover: The Hokies will kick off 2015 with their exciting grand entrance on to Worsham Field.

Featured on the inside front cover is Virginia Tech head coach Frank Beamer, the winningest active coach in college football.

The inside back cover introduces Tech's vast indoor practice facility, completed just this summer, adjacent to the Hokies' outdoor Steve Johnson Practice Field, and just outside the Tech locker room.

The 2015 schedule and a highlight of the 2016 schedule, the Battle at Bristol, are featured on the outside back cover.

OFFENSIVE LINE

HEADLINES

Key losses: David Wang, Caleb Farris, Laurence Gibson

Key returnees: tackle Jonathan McLaughlin, guard Wyatt Teller, guard Augie Conte

McLaughlin, Teller and Conte combined to start 25 games last season, with Conte starting 10 (nine at right guard). McLaughlin started the first nine, but missed the rest of the season with an ankle injury.

Point of Interest: Offensive line coach Stacy Searels moved McLaughlin to left tackle this spring and played the first unit (McLaughlin, Teller, Conte, Eric Gallo and Wade Hansen) together the entire spring.

Player to Watch: Eric Gallo, the least experienced of the offensive linemen, played just 14 plays last season. But he drew rave reviews for his work in spring practice and solidified the center spot. The staff expects big things from him this season.

OVERVIEW

The best part about this spring for the offensive line was that none of the first-teamers switched positions. Searels did not move guys around, instead focusing on keeping everyone at the same spot and letting the group develop cohesion. It paid off, too. Fans witnessed that when the Hokies scored touchdowns throughout the spring scrimmages and on four trips into the red zone during the Maroon-Orange game, including three on short touchdown runs in which the offensive line opened holes.

"We didn't move guys around because we really made our switches before spring ball," Searels said. "We had a void at center, but Eric Gallo filled that void, which allowed me to be solid at the center position. Wyatt and Augie both had played, and at times, played at a high level last year, so I didn't have to move them around."

"The movement came when we moved Jon to left tackle. Jon went out last year [because of an ankle injury], and Wade [Hansen] stepped in and played right tackle, so it was easier for him to do that, and Jon had some experience at left tackle. So I thought that would be the best. The continuity of that group was good."

Gallo and Hansen are the two relative newcomers, though Hansen started three games at right tackle after McLaughlin went down with the injury. Hansen, a walk-on who transferred from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, a Division III school in New York, earned a scholarship for his work this spring.

The questions with the offensive line center on the backups. Searels juggled guys around to get a better evaluation of the group, which makes sense. Of the backups, only former tight end Darius Redman is a senior.

"We've got to find some depth," he said. "The question is: who is going to be the next center, and who is going to be the sixth guy to play? If someone twists an ankle, who is going in next? Is it Parker Osterloh? Is it Darius Redman? Is it Yosuah Nijman? Is it Braxton Pfaff? Who is the next guy? That hasn't been established yet."

COACH SEARELS ON THE OFFENSIVE LINE:

What I like about it is that we've got enough people that, if you're not performing day in and day out, somebody else is going to take your spot. If you come out and have a bad day, you're going to be on the second group the next day.

RECEIVERS & TIGHT ENDS

OVERVIEW

The tight end position may be the strongest part of the 2015 squad, as the Hokies go three deep at this spot – Malleck, Hodges and Calvin Cline – and lose very little with any of the three in the game.

Malleck, the senior leader, does all the little things to help a team win, while Hodges provides the big plays. Cline received a medical hardship waiver because of a knee injury last year, but showed his talent with a 26-catch, 321-yard season as a true freshman in 2013.

Hodges, though, is the key to the offense. A freshman All-American a year ago, he possesses an array of skills, and the staff worked on using him in multiple ways this spring.

COACH STINESPRING ON THE TIGHT ENDS:

We've got a lot of talent and a lot of competition going on at our position, and I like that. I think we're in a better position than we've been in quite some time. We've got a lot of versatility, with guys being able to do multiple things. That's a valuable commodity to have.

"He handled it well because it's exciting to him," tight ends coach Bryan Stinespring said. "It keeps him motivated to continue to learn and continue to be a valuable part. It's not an easy venture. He understands that."

HEADLINES

Key losses: Willie Byrn

Key returnees: tight end Ryan Malleck, tight end Bucky Hodges, receiver Isaiah Ford, receiver Cam Phillips

Ford and Phillips were true freshman a year ago and combined to catch 96 passes for 1,207 yards and nine touchdowns. Hodges, a redshirt freshman a year ago, caught 45 passes for 526 yards and seven touchdowns.

Point of Interest: Hodges broke the school record for receiving yards and touchdown receptions by a tight end in a single season at Tech. The staff plans on using him in a variety of ways this season to take advantage of his talents.

Player to Watch: Joel Caleb was a top recruit in the 2012 recruiting class, but has struggled to find a role. He started his career at receiver before being moved to tailback, but is now back and receiver and hoping to contribute to a depth-shy unit.

Isaiah Ford

"He had an outstanding year last year, but there were some plays that he left on the field, too. We want him to recognize things and want him to play faster. There are times when they [the tight ends] have to play exceptionally fast, and there are times when they've got to know to balance it out with patience to set up routes. And you only do that by doing it over and over again."

At receiver, Ford and Phillips lead the way, but will they get some help? That is the question. None of the backups are proven.

The lone senior of the group is Demitri Knowles, who caught 45 passes two seasons ago. Last year, though, Knowles caught just three. He played better this past spring, and Tech receivers coach Zohn Burden thinks Knowles can return to his 2013 form.

"Demitri is improving," Burden said. "He's a fast kid. He's being more physical in the run game, so that is going to allow the pass game to get open, and he's a guy that can run by you. He's doing that out there. He's made some big plays. He's coming along."

Kevin Asante and Caleb got a lot of work this past spring, and Burden liked their approach. They're a microcosm of the unit. There is some talent, but a lot of unknowns.

QUARTERBACKS AND RUNNING BACKS

HEADLINES

Key losses: none

Key returnees: quarterback Michael Brewer, tailback J.C. Coleman, tailback Trey Edmunds, fullback Sam Rogers

Brewer threw for nearly 2,700 yards in his first season at Tech, but is being challenged by Brenden Motley for the starting position. The offensive backfield rushed for nearly 2,000 yards last season, but no back rushed for more than 533. Marshawn Williams was on his way to a nice freshman season (475 yards) before tearing an ACL. His status for the 2015 campaign is unclear.

Points of Interest: Injuries decimated the tailback spot in 2014, but Coleman saved the Hokies down the stretch. He carried the ball just 26 times in the first nine games, but in the final four games – three of which were Tech wins – he rushed for at least 95 yards in all four and was the MVP of the Military Bowl after a 157-yard performance.

Player to Watch: Travon McMillian, a redshirt freshman, got a lot of work in spring practice and showed speed and an ability to make defenders miss. He also has good hands, and coaches expect to use him in a number of different ways to get him on the field.

OVERVIEW

A year ago, Brewer only had a month to learn coordinator Scot Loeffler's complex system, and his results on the field were mixed, as he threw 18 touchdowns, but 15 interceptions. He only threw two interceptions this spring, though, and was named the offense's most improved player.

"But a lot of that [last year's performance] had to do with having complete knowledge both inside and out," Loeffler said. "You're making a decision in 1.7 seconds, with a lot of people running at you trying to kill you, and you have to be on. The margin of error is minimal. The overall knowledge has made him a better player."

COACH LOEFFLER ON THE QUARTERBACKS:

There has been a huge emphasis on protecting the football. If there was something we didn't do well last year, particularly at the beginning of the year, it was protecting the ball. We had way too many interceptions. There are a lot of excuses and a lot of reasons, but we're to the point now that both guys have been in the system, and there are no more excuses. There is no reason not to know what we're supposed to do, and they've embraced it.

Brenden Motley came out of spring practice right on Brewer's heels. Like Brewer, Motley exhibited better decision-making skills and better accuracy because of increased knowledge of the scheme. But Loeffler wants to see a little more consistency with him.

"At times, he does exactly what we need him to do, and at times, he takes a step back, and then the next day, he looks great," Loeffler said. "Overall, consistency is going to be the key for him."

Behind the quarterbacks, Tech appears to be in great shape. The Hokies didn't have Williams (knee) or Shai McKenzie (suspended indefinitely) in spring practice, but Coleman, Edmunds and McMillian all played well.

"If the season started today, J.C. would be the starter," running backs coach Shane Beamer said. "In our minds, depending on Shai's situation and Marshawn's health, there is a next group, and that's Trey, Travon, Marshawn and Shai."

"We'll keep the competition going through the summer and into August. J.C. knows he has to keep competing and has to have a great summer because those guys are coming for the starting spot. I've told them they need to be working to be the starter."

At fullback, Rogers missed the spring with a fractured elbow, but should be back and continue to help the offense in a number of ways. Behind him, Steven Peoples, a freshman walk-on, was one of the big surprises of spring practice.

"He needs to stay attached to Sam Rogers' hip," Beamer said. "Whatever Sam does, he needs to be doing as well."

COACH BEAMER ON THE RUNNING BACKS:

We're excited about the depth we have at the running back position. Everyone returns from last year, and those guys are a year older with more experience and then we were able to add some new guys to the mix. We're extremely excited about the potential of this group and the work ethic they bring to the position.

DEFENSIVE LINE

HEADLINES

Key losses: none

Key returnees: tackle Luther Maddy, end Dadi L'homme Nicolas, end Ken Ekanem, and tackle Corey Marshall

The Hokies return all four starters on the defensive front, and they've combined for 74 career starts. All four have earned All-ACC honors at some point in their careers.

Point of Interest: Luther Maddy started the first four games of last season, but a torn meniscus in his right knee required surgery and put an end to his season. He received a medical hardship waiver to return for a fifth year and will be the leader along the defensive line.

Player to Watch: Tech's coaches projected Vinny Mihota to be a defensive tackle, but they gave him some reps at end during spring practice, and the redshirt freshman performed well enough to work himself into the mix. They expect Mihota's versatility will help the Hokies at multiple spots this season.

Corey Marshall

OVERVIEW

Maddy (knee), Marshall (ankle) and Ekanem (shoulder) all missed spring practice because of injuries, but that allowed defensive line coach Charley Wiles to work a lot of young players, and Wiles feels this may be his deepest group since he arrived in Blacksburg in 1996.

"You hate to have injuries, but they were a good thing in a way," Wiles said. "We kept all those guys out, didn't get them hurt, and we were able to rep a lot of young guys that we're going to depend on. From that standpoint, it was good. We should be at full go."

Wiles went into spring practice concerned about depth at the defensive end spot. Nicolas certainly did his thing this spring, as he ranks among the ACC's best, but Wiles wanted to see someone emerge with Ekanem out. That turned out to be Seth Dooley, a redshirt sophomore who started playing up to his immense potential.

Also, another end started to emerge toward the end of spring practice – Vinny Mihota. The redshirt freshman spent the first couple of weeks this spring at defensive tackle before Wiles started getting him some work at end.

"Vinny's within that top eight [of defensive linemen]," Wiles said at the conclusion of spring practice. "If we started practice today, Vinny and Seth would be the backup defensive ends with Ken and Dadi."

The tackle spots are a bit more settled. Woody Baron and Nigel Williams worked with the first team all spring because of the injuries to Maddy and Marshall. Ricky Walker and Steve Sobczak worked mostly with the second units in the spring, thus giving Wiles potentially seven tackles, depending on where Mihota ends up.

COACH WILES

ON THE DEFENSIVE LINE:

With our two-deep right now, I think we've got a chance to be pretty good. But we've got to stay hungry and stay humble and keep working hard and always assume that somebody is trying to get your job. If we keep that kind of work ethic, then we've got a shot.

Key losses: mike linebacker Chase Williams, whip linebacker Derek Di Nardo

Key returnees: backer Deon Clarke, mike linebacker Andrew Motuapuaka

Clarke started all 13 games last season, and he finished second on the team with 74 tackles. He also finished third on the team with 11 tackles for a loss.

Point of Interest: Motuapuaka started four games in place of Williams, who injured his knee late in the season. In those four games, he recorded at least 10 tackles in each of the four, and he finished the season with 54 tackles in just 12 games.

Player to Watch: Jamieon Moss played in all 13 games in 2014, but nearly all of that action came on special teams. He played well in spring practice, as defensive coordinator Bud Foster called him one of the defense's most improved players.

Deon Clarke

OVERVIEW

Tech's starters at the two inside linebacker spots appear to be set with the return of Clarke, who started all 13 games a season ago, and Motuapuaka, who made a name for himself in Williams' absence. Both played well in spring practice.

"Both Andrew and Deon had really, really good springs," Foster said. "I thought Andrew steadily improved. He could have been one of our award winners when it was all said and done. He had that kind of spring. He just improved in all areas.

"Deon was one of our award winners [Frank O. Moseley Award as the player on defense who exhibited the most hustle during the offseason and spring workouts]. He had a really good offseason and a really good spring. I'm counting on big things from him – from both of those guys, really – but particularly Deon because this will be his senior season."

Unproven players, however, stand behind these two on the depth chart. At backer, the situation isn't quite as unsettling because Moss showed improvement, and Raymon Minor showed flashes of his immense potential this past spring.

the season. He worked in some individual drills, but saw no scrimmage work in spring practice. Foster liked what he saw last season and hopes to see Huelskamp work his way into the mix.

At whip linebacker, Ronny Vandyke is looking to go out on a good note after spending much of the past two seasons dealing with injuries. He's the only proven player at the position.

"Ronny has improved, and the one thing about it, he is a big kid that can run," whip linebackers coach Cornell Brown said. "So that helps him out a lot. He has a lot of size, and he creates a tough window for quarterbacks to fit the ball in. He did a good job this spring, and he went against some good guys in Bucky [Hodges] and [Ryan] Malleck."

With only two seniors among this group, the future looks bright. But for Foster and Brown, the future is always now.

COACH FOSTER ON THE INSIDE LINEBACKERS:

I think we're solid with our starters in Deon [Clarke] and Andrew [Motuapuaka], but there is a drop-off behind those two guys. I don't think talent is the issue, but certainly we lack experience behind those guys. We're going to need for those guys to grow up quickly and be consistent because you're only a play away from being the guy.

Coming out of spring practice, two freshmen – true freshman Carson Lydon and redshirt freshman Trent Young – were behind Motuapuaka at mike linebacker. Lydon, a touted recruit, enrolled in January and struggled some this spring.

A player to watch at mike linebacker, though, is Sean Huelskamp, who tore his ACL last fall in the Ohio State game and missed the rest of

COACH BROWN ON THE WHIP LINEBACKERS:

At the end of the day, you want to be a successful team, and how do you fit in making this team successful? Everybody wants to be the starter. Everybody wants to be the headline guy. But for a team to be successful, you've got to have role players, and we have some good role players at this position. When your opportunity comes, you have to be ready to excel.

DEFENSIVE SECONDARY

OVERVIEW

Defensive backs coach Torrian Gray has been juggling a lot of players at different positions to find the right combinations. Fuller (wrist), Facyson and Greg Stroman (hamstring) all missed parts or all of spring practice, forcing Gray to put untested players in tough situations. But the one constant has been Clark, who wowed everyone with a tremendous spring.

"He had as good of a spring as anybody I can recall since I've been here," Gray said. "I'm talking about my defensive backs. He's been that sound and that solid and that consistent. He had a big-time spring."

Stroman returned to the lineup toward the end of spring practice, and Gray expects Fuller to return at full strength in August and hopes Facyson does, giving the Hokies a solid trio at cornerback. That would allow Gray to move Clark to either nickel back or free safety. Or he could keep Clark at cornerback and move someone else.

The pressing concerns are filling those free safety and rover spots. A depth chart started to emerge by the end of spring practice. C.J. Reavis, who played in 12 games as a true freshman a

HEADLINES

Key losses: Kyshoen Jarrett, Detrick Bonner

Key returnees: cornerback Kendall Fuller, cornerback Chuck Clark

Virginia Tech has the reputation of being "DBU – Defensive Backs University," but the Hokies only intercepted 12 passes a year ago, including nine by the defensive backs. Bonner led the way with three interceptions, while Fuller and Donovan Riley had two each.

Point of Interest: Jarrett and Bonner depart after a combined 81 career starts. Of the candidates for the starting rover and free safeties positions, none have started a game at either of those spots. Riley, who played free safety this spring, started seven games as a cornerback last season.

Player to Watch: Chuck Clark was the defensive MVP this spring and has established himself as the unit's most versatile player. Clark played cornerback in spring practice, but may end up being the Hokies' nickel back or moved to safety, pending the return of Brandon Facyson (broken leg). He quietly finished third on the team in tackles last year.

year ago, solidified the rover spot, with Terrell Edmunds behind him. Desmond Frye was the No. 1 free safety coming out of spring practice, with Donovan Riley behind him, but that situation is fluid heading into the season.

"I anticipate C.J. continuing to get better and being a dynamic guy at the rover spot moving forward," Gray said. "At free safety, we've had Donovan Riley and Desmond Frye rotating there."

"We've got to have a plan with the pieces of the puzzle. It may still be Chuck Clark, or we may have another guy and Chuck will be the nickel. We have different scenarios that we're going to play with, and all of it is contingent on whether we get Brandon back healthy."

Gray expects freshman Adonis Alexander and Mook Reynolds to see action this season. Reynolds may be in the mix at the nickel spot, with Alexander helping as a backup at cornerback and on special teams.

COACH GRAY ON THE SECONDARY:

Injuries build depth – and we've had some injuries. You find out a lot more about some other guys. I think it will make us a stronger unit moving forward. You don't call it [the injuries] a blessing because you don't want guys to get injured, but in some respects, we're fortunate because I think it's going to make us stronger moving forward.

SPECIAL TEAMS

HEADLINES

Key losses: none

Key Returnees: punter A.J. Hughes, kicker Joey Slye, snapper Eddie D'Antuono, punt returner Greg Stroman, kick returner Demitri Knowles

Slye became the first freshman to open the season as Tech's starting kicker since the 2000 season, and he fared well, hitting 20 of 28 attempts on the season. He made 20 of 24 inside of 50 yards, solidifying the spot.

Point of Interest: Hughes handled every punt last season for the Hokies, but averaged a career-worst 39.9 yards per punt. Following the season, he underwent back surgery and missed all of spring practice. The coaches hope he returns to the form he exhibited as a sophomore when he averaged 44.1 yards per punt.

Player to Watch: Travon McMillian returned kicks in the annual Maroon-Orange spring game, and head coach Frank Beamer hinted that the redshirt freshman may be the top candidate for the kickoff return position this upcoming season.

A.J. Hughes

OVERVIEW

Head coach Frank Beamer oversees many of the Hokies' special teams units and wants to see improved play in all phases this upcoming season. He expects to get Hughes back, but established a contingency plan during spring practice by having Mitchell Ludwig handle the punting.

"Ludwig had a good spring, and he's a very capable punter," Beamer said. "I really expect competition between he and A.J. next fall. He needs to be more consistent in putting the ball where it needs to be. If he gets that down, I could see him being a factor. I always like it when we've got competition."

At placekicker, Slye returns, but will be pushed by Carson Wise and Michael Santamaria. All three will battle for the kickoff job, too.

In the return game, Beamer expects the Hokies to be better in 2015. Greg Stroman returns after a freshman year in which he averaged 6.9 yards per return, and he returned one 88 yards for a touchdown in the spring game.

"He wants to be back there," Beamer said. "He wants to take the ball and go, and that's what you want back there. I would hope that that part of the game would continue to improve."

Beamer said he liked what he saw out of Travon McMillian, who was among a group of candidates for the kickoff return job. J.C. Coleman and Trey Edmunds were in that group, along with fullback Steven Peoples.

The Hokies need to improve in this area – they ranked 100th nationally last season with a 19.5 average. Beamer, though, wants to see improvement in every area on special teams and for the obvious reason.

"It's the quickest way to win a game," he said.

COACH FRANK BEAMER ON THE SPECIAL TEAMS:

We're really fortunate that we've got a lot of good kickers. The competition is really good.

HEAD COACH FRANK BEAMER

COACH HAS LED HOKIES
TO 22 CONSECUTIVE BOWL APPEARANCES

When Frank Beamer accepted the job as head football coach at his alma mater in 1987, his goal was for the Virginia Tech football program to reach a consistent level of excellence. The Hokies have come a long way since then, and, along the way, Beamer has become one of the most respected and successful coaches on the college football scene. Now in his 29th campaign in Blacksburg, Beamer is the winningest active coach in the FBS with 273 career wins.

Last year, Tech handed eventual national champion Ohio State its lone loss and capped its 22nd-straight winning season with a victory over Cincinnati in the Military Bowl.

Under Beamer, Tech football has enjoyed unprecedented success with 22 consecutive bowl appearances, four ACC titles, five ACC Coastal Division crowns, three BIG EAST Conference titles, six BCS appearances, two "major" bowl victories and a trip to the national championship game. Under his guidance, the Hokies have finished in the Top 20 in 16 of the past 22 seasons, including four top-10 finishes during the past 11 years.

The Hokies couldn't have asked for anyone better to guide their football program into the ACC. In 2004 – Tech's first season in the league – Beamer and his staff led a young team picked to finish sixth in the league to an ACC title and a BCS Bowl. That team also won the league's 2004 Fall Sportsmanship Award for football, yet another tribute to the program Beamer and his staff have built. A year later, the Hokies produced an 11-2 record, won the ACC Coastal Division title, earned a spot in the inaugural league championship contest and appeared in a bowl game. Beamer was named the ACC Coach of the Year both seasons.

After the 2006 squad went 10-3 with a bowl appearance, Beamer's 2007 Tech team won the conference title and played Kansas in the Orange Bowl. Beamer was named the 2007 Southeast Coach of the Year by Sports Unlimited and was a finalist for both the Paul "Bear" Bryant and Eddie Robinson Coach of the Year awards. The Hokies went 11-3 and finished ninth in the final national polls.

The 2008 season may have been Beamer's finest effort as he took one of the youngest teams in his tenure, played one of the toughest schedules and, despite several setbacks and disappointing losses, led the Hokies to an ACC title and a 20-7 win over Cincinnati in the Orange Bowl. In 2009, the Hokies kept rolling, winning 10 games including an impressive victory over Tennessee in the Chick-fil-A Bowl.

In 2010, after an unexpected 0-2 start, he led Tech to 11 wins, an ACC title and a berth in the Orange Bowl to cap off another impressive season. He was also named the winner of the inaugural Joseph V. Paterno Coach of the Year Award, recognizing Beamer for his team's performance on the field, in the classroom and in the community.

In 2011, Beamer led the Hokies to 11 wins and an appearance in the ACC championship game after capturing another Coastal Division crown. The Hokies finished with an 11-3 overall mark, including a berth in the Sugar Bowl against Michigan, Tech's eighth "major" bowl game appearance. In 2012, the Hokies won their final three games, including a victory over Rutgers in the Russell Athletic Bowl, to finish with their 20th-straight winning season and in 2013, Beamer led Tech to a berth in the Sun Bowl after the Hokies won eight games in the regular season.

Beamer, who was the consensus National Coach of the Year in 1999, is the active leader among Division I FBS coaches in victories with 273 wins over 34 seasons as a head coach. Now in his 29th year at the Tech helm, his overall record with the Hokies stands at 231-115-2. He became Tech's winningest football coach during the 1997 campaign. Counting six years as head coach at Murray State prior to joining the Hokies, Beamer's overall record is 273-138-4.

A spot in the Sugar Bowl to play top-ranked Florida State for the national championship focused widespread attention on Virginia Tech and its football program following the 1999 season. Although the Hokies fell short in their bid for the national title, they proved that they belong among the top teams in the college ranks.

For his part in the Hokies' magical 1999 season, Beamer earned eight national coach of the year awards. He was named the Bobby Dodd Coach of the Year, the GTE Coach of the Year, the Eddie Robinson Coach of the Year, the Paul "Bear" Bryant Coach of the Year, The Associated Press Coach of the Year, the Walter Camp Football Foundation/Street & Smith's Coach of the Year, the Maxwell Football Club Coach of the Year and the Woody Hayes Coach of the Year. He also was named the BIG EAST Conference Coach of the Year for the third time.

Tech won the BIG EAST title in 1995 and 1999 and shared it in '96. Beamer was voted BIG EAST Coach of the Year by the league's coaches each of those seasons.

There have been plenty of other accolades for the Hokies' coach. Prior to the 2005 season, a Seattle Times poll of more than 40 coaches voted Frank Beamer as the current head coach for whom they had the most respect. When BIG EAST Conference football celebrated its first 10 years of existence in 2000, Beamer was voted the Coach of the Decade by the league's media. In 1997, he was inducted into The Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame.

The rise of the Tech football program has made Beamer a man in demand. It has opened doors to places he may never have dreamed of as a youngster growing up in Southwest Virginia.

In September 2000, Beamer was invited to the White House where he joined a select group that stood in the Rose Garden behind then-President Bill Clinton as he made remarks on the Conservation and Reinvestment Act. Beamer was one of the keynote speakers at the American Football Coaches Association Convention in 2000; and, in April 2001, he joined former Prime Minister of Great Britain Lady Margaret Thatcher as one of the featured speakers at SUCCESS 2001, one of the nation's most popular business seminars.

In April 2004, Beamer was presented with a Humanitarian Award by the National Conference for Community and Justice for his contributions to fostering justice, equity and community in the Roanoke Valley. An avid NASCAR fan, Beamer has been the official starter for races at Bristol Motor Speedway and Richmond International Raceway.

In 1990, Beamer received a new contract and a substantial pay raise. He refused the raise, however, until a time that all classified and faculty employees of the university could have the same opportunity for pay raises. Most state salaries had been frozen at the time. When offered a pay increase in 2006, he did not sign the agreement until his assistant coaches were taken care of first.

Another indication of Beamer's love for the university came on the night he was inducted into The Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame. He called it the biggest honor of his entire career. With the induction, he became the first active coach at the university to be honored in that fashion.

The 68-year-old Beamer, the first alumnus to guide the Hokies since the 1940s, took over the Tech reins from Bill Dooley in January 1987. He began work a few days after the Hokies had beaten North Carolina State in the Peach Bowl. It took a while for him to get the Hokies moving in the right direction because the football program was hit with NCAA sanctions at the time.

But everything came together in the 1990s. The Techmen finished 9-3 in 1993 after beating Indiana, 45-20, in a wild Independence Bowl game. Tech followed up with an 8-4 season in 1994, losing to Tennessee, 45-23, in the Gator Bowl.

The Tech teams in 1995 and 1996 were among the best in school history. The 1995 team swept the BIG EAST Conference championship outright, and the 1996 club tied for the title with Syracuse and Miami.

The 1995 team was 9-2 during the regular season and then came up with a stirring 28-10 victory over Texas in the Sugar Bowl. The 1996 team went 10-1 during the regular season and lost to powerful Nebraska, 41-21, in the Orange Bowl after giving the Cornhuskers a fierce battle for three quarters.

The Hokies fell to 7-5 in 1997 and were beaten badly by North Carolina in the Gator Bowl, 42-3. But they came right back with a 9-3 mark in 1998 that included an impressive 38-7 victory over Alabama in the inaugural Music City Bowl in Nashville, Tenn.

The two winningest seasons in school history followed in 1999 and 2000 with the Hokies posting back-to-back 11-1 records. Tech registered its first-ever 11-0 regular-season record in '99 before losing its national championship battle with FSU.

In 2000, the Hokies' only blemish was a loss at Miami in the ninth game of the season. Both seasons, Tech climbed as high as No. 2 in The

STABILITY AT THE TOP EQUALS SUCCESS

One of the keys to the continuing success of Virginia Tech football has been the stability of the program. That stability begins at the top with head coach Frank Beamer, whose 28 years at the Hokie helm have helped the program develop a sense of the stability and consistency currently enjoyed by just a handful of other Division I-A schools. None of the 127 FBS head football coaches has been at their current schools consecutively longer than Beamer, who enters his 29th season at the helm of the Hokies.

COACHING EXCELLENCE

Virginia Tech defensive coordinator Bud Foster won the prestigious Broyles Award as the nation's top assistant coach following the 2006 season. Foster was a finalist for the award in 1999, 2001 and 2005. He was also named the No. 1 defensive coordinator in Division I-A by rivals.com prior to the 2005 season.

THE HIGHEST COMPLIMENT

In a Seattle Times poll of more than 40 Division I-A head football coaches prior to the 2005 season, Virginia Tech's Frank Beamer was picked as the most respected coach among current I-A head coaches.

Coach Frank Beamer reads to youngsters to promote the power of reading and literacy across the commonwealth of Virginia through Herma's Readers, a non-profit organization he formed as a tribute to his late mother, Herma Beamer.

Associated Press poll, finishing No. 2 in '99 and No. 6 in 2000. The Hokies climbed as high as No. 5 in the 2001 AP poll and finished 18th. In 2002, Tech was ranked as high as No. 3 in the AP poll after posting consecutive wins over nationally ranked LSU (14th), Marshall (16th) and Texas A&M (19th). The Hokies' youthful team finished the season ranked 18th.

During the 2003 season, the Hokies ended No. 2 Miami's 39-game regular-season winning streak with a 31-7 victory. The 'Canes were the highest-ranked opponent Tech had ever beaten on the gridiron. The Hokies climbed as high as No. 3 in the polls before falling victim to inconsistent play during the final month of the season. Still, Tech earned eight wins for the 10th time in 11 seasons.

The 2004 season saw the Hokies bounce back to win their last eight games of the regular season, including victories against three nationally ranked teams – No. 6 West Virginia, No. 16 Virginia and No. 9 Miami.

Beamer's early Tech teams also registered many exciting victories. One of the most impressive came in 1990 when the Hokies capped the year with a 38-13 victory over arch-rival Virginia. During the 1989 season, Tech knocked off ninth-ranked West Virginia, 12-10, in Morgantown.

During his undergraduate days at Tech, Beamer started three years as a cornerback and played on the Hokies' 1966 and 1968 Liberty Bowl teams.

He received a B.S. in distributive education from Tech in 1969 and a master's in guidance from Radford in 1972. Then came the start of the Beamer coaching career.

He began as an assistant at Radford High School from 1969 through 1971. Then, after one season as a graduate assistant at the University of Maryland, he went to The Citadel where he worked five seasons under Bobby Ross and one year under Art Baker. His last two years at The Citadel, Beamer was the defensive coordinator. In 1979, he went to Murray State as the defensive coordinator under Mike Gottfried. He was named head coach at MSU in 1981 and went on to compile a six-year record of 42-23-2.

The Tech coach was born in Mt. Airy, North Carolina, and grew up in Hillsville, Virginia. At Hillsville High, he earned 11 varsity letters as a three-sport athlete in football, basketball and baseball.

Beamer is married to the former Cheryl Oakley of Richmond, Virginia. They have two children, Shane, a former member of his dad's football team at Tech and now the associate head coach at Virginia Tech; and daughter Casey, a 2003 graduate of Tech. He has two granddaughters, Sutton and Olivia, and a grandson, Hunter, children of Shane and his wife, Emily. He also has a grandson, Hudson, son of Casey and her husband, Canaan.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Frank Beamer, the first Tech alumnus to guide the Hokies' football program since the 1940s, has won more games at Tech than any other head football coach. Prior to Beamer, no other grid coach in Virginia Tech history had served more than 10 seasons as head coach. Beamer is also the most-tenured active FBS head coach, having been at his current school consecutively longer than any other coach in the nation.

With last season's visit to the Military Bowl, head coach Frank Beamer has led the Hokies to 22 straight bowl games, making him one of four coaches all-time in college football history to accomplish that.

NATIONAL COACH OF THE YEAR

Coach Frank Beamer was tabbed the consensus national football coach of the year for 1999 after leading the Hokies to an 11-0 regular season and a berth in the national championship game.

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF COACH BEAMER AND HIS STAFF, THE HOKIES HAVE ...

- played for the national championship for the first time in school history.
- become one of only two Division I schools to go to bowl games each of the last 22 seasons (longest active streak per NCAA).
- become one of only six programs in college football history to go to a bowl in at least 20 straight years, Nebraska (35), Michigan (33), Florida State (33), Alabama (25), Florida (22) and Tech (22; active).
- earned seven conference titles and eight "major" bowl bids in a 22-year span.
- become one only four teams in the history of the Division I level to produce 10 or more wins eight seasons or more in a row.
- compiled a school-record streak in the Associated Press Top 25 Poll at 84 consecutive weeks.
- posted 11 wins in a season for the first time.
- registered the program's first back-to-back 11-win seasons.
- produced the school's first 11-0 regular-season record in football.
- won Sugar Bowl and Orange Bowl titles.
- won four Atlantic Coast Conference titles.
- won an ACC Championship in their first season of competition.
- played in five ACC Championship games.
- produced the ACC Coach of the Year and Player of the Year during their inaugural ACC season.

TECH OFFENSE

"The 2015 season is an incredible opportunity for our team and our offensive unit. We must as an offense handle what we call the 'no talent issues' to have success this fall. Great leadership, playing relentless, being disciplined, handling pressure, playing tough, understanding our assignments, playing smart and finishing are all areas that we must be tremendous in. All of the traits listed above do not require 'talent' to excel in those areas. There must be a tremendous urgency Sunday through Friday to practice every rep as if we are playing in the ACC Championship. This unit will have a chance to help our team win if we handle the 'no talent issues', and prepare like champions on a daily basis."

Scot Loeffler, in his third year as Virginia Tech's offensive coordinator, brings 17 years of coaching experience on the collegiate and NFL levels to the Hokies' staff. Loeffler, who served as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at Auburn in 2012 and in the same role at Temple in 2011, has tutored seven college quarterbacks who went on to play in the NFL: Tom Brady, Tim Tebow, Brian Griese, Chad Henne, Drew Henson, John Navarre and Logan Thomas.

In Loeffler's first year in Blacksburg, Thomas finished off a stellar career by breaking career records for passing yards, attempts, touchdown passes and rushing touchdowns by a quarterback and a young wide receiving trio became the first group of receivers in program history to each record 40 or more receptions in a season. Thomas was drafted in the fourth round of the 2014 NFL Draft by Arizona. In 2014, Michael Brewer set new school records for completions and attempts, throwing for 2,692 yards.

At Auburn, his pro-style offense produced a 1,000-yard rusher in Tre Mason, who started six games after mid-season. Under Loeffler, Mason became the first non-QB to lead Auburn in total offense for a season since Bo Jackson in 1985.

At Temple, Loeffler guided the 9-4 Owls' offense that was seventh nationally in rushing averaging 256.5 yards per game and 39th nationally in scoring (30.6 ppg). Running back Bernard Pierce was sixth nationally in rushing, averaging 123.4 yards a game.

Loeffler spent the 2009 and 2010 seasons at Florida as the quarterbacks coach. He led a Florida quarterback unit that led the nation in pass efficiency (167.3) in 2009, after they passed for 3,305 yards for 28 touchdowns with just five interceptions. In his first season at Florida, the Gators ranked second in the SEC in passing offense with an average of 236.1 yards per game. Loeffler guided Tim Tebow in his final season at Florida, during which he passed for 2,895 yards and 21 touchdowns, finishing his senior year with a passing efficiency of 164.17. Tebow left Florida with five NCAA, 14 SEC and 28 UF records.

Loeffler spent the 2008 season with the NFL's Detroit Lions, where he guided a quarterback unit that threw for 2,960 yards.

For six seasons (2002-07), Loeffler coached the quarterbacks at Michigan, his alma mater, including second-round NFL draft pick Chad Henne, who became the first true freshman quarterback to lead his team to a Big Ten title and start in a BCS bowl game. Henne set school marks in career passing yards (9,715), touchdowns (87), completions (828) and attempts (1,387). Loeffler also helped develop John Navarre into Michigan's first All-Big Ten first-team quarterback since 1997. The quarterbacks he coached at Michigan have gone on to play in 337 regular-season NFL games, including 310 starts and five Super Bowl rings as pros.

Loeffler served as Central Michigan's quarterback coach for two seasons in 2000-01.

A quarterback for the Wolverines from 1993-96, Loeffler received his bachelor's degree in 1996. As a student and graduate assistant coach at Michigan, he worked with two future NFL quarterbacks in Tom Brady and Brian Griese and was part of the Wolverines' 1997 undefeated national championship season.

Loeffler, a native of Barberton, Ohio, and his wife, Amie, have three children, son Luke and daughters Alexis and Mary Elizabeth.

Former Virginia Tech receiver and long snapper Shane Beamer is in his fifth season on the Hokies' coaching staff as the associate head coach and running backs coach after spending four seasons at the University of South Carolina.

In his first year back in Blacksburg, he provided mentorship to David Wilson, who broke the school's single-season rushing record and was named both an AP All-American and the ACC's Player of the Year and went on to be taken in the first round of the NFL Draft by the New York Giants. In 2013, his group of running backs didn't fumble the ball in 350 combined attempts, marking the first time under head coach Frank Beamer's tenure that feat has happened. His 2014 group suffered through several injuries that hampered production, but J.C. Coleman stepped up late in the season and earned Military Bowl MVP honors, a game in which Shane Beamer served as the acting head coach while his father Frank watched from the press box following throat surgery.

Beamer coached several spots for the Gamecocks, including the spurs and strong safeties, as well as serving as the special teams coordinator in both 2009 and 2010. Beamer was also Carolina's recruiting coordinator, duties he took on following the conclusion of the 2008 regular season.

In 2009, Beamer's special team units recorded five blocked kicks, tying for the SEC lead and tying for the eighth-highest total in the nation. Beamer helped coach a defense that ranked third in the SEC and 15th in the country in total defense and second in the league and eighth in the land in passing defense.

Beamer's first class as the recruiting coordinator (2009) was ranked the nation's 12th-best class by both Rivals.com and Scout.com and the 2010 and 2011 recruiting classes were again ranked among the nation's top 25. Beamer was nominated for the 2009 Frank Broyles Assistant Coach of the Year award following the season.

Beamer joined the South Carolina staff in 2007, coaching the outside linebackers and serving as the co-coordinator of special teams in his first season in Columbia. He worked with the cornerbacks in his second campaign. That 2008 unit was one of the most productive on the field as they were part of a defensive squad that finished the regular season ranked second in the nation in pass defense and 13th in total defense.

Beamer went to South Carolina after spending the previous three seasons at Mississippi State University. He was hired by Sylvester Croom in January 2004 to coach the Bulldog cornerbacks under defensive coordinator Ellis Johnson. Beamer went to Mississippi State from the University of Tennessee, where he spent three seasons as a graduate assistant helping with the cornerbacks, coaching the place-kickers, punters and long snappers and assisting in all special teams areas.

He also oversaw game opponent scouting while at UT and earned a master's degree in sport science in December 2003.

Prior to joining the staff at Tennessee, Beamer worked one season (2000) as a graduate assistant at Georgia Tech, helping with the Yellow Jacket quarterbacks and wide receivers.

Beamer earned his bachelor's degree from Virginia Tech in 1999 and was the Hokies' starting long snapper for three seasons. He also contributed as a wide receiver. He played on four bowl teams and three Big East Conference championship squads.

He concluded his college playing career by helping the 1999 Hokies to a No. 2 final regular-season ranking and a berth in the national championship game played against Florida State in the Sugar Bowl.

Born in Charleston, South Carolina, Beamer is the son of longtime Virginia Tech head football coach Frank Beamer. He is married to the former Emily Gladney, a Starkville, Mississippi, native. The couple has two daughters, Sutton and Olivia, and a son, Hunter.

2011 FCS Playoffs (ODU, second round)

In December 2014, Burden finished his third year of his second stint on the Old Dominion University coaching staff. Burden coached the Monarch defensive backs for four years before leaving in 2011.

Burden coached Antonio Vaughan to first-team All-Conference USA honors in 2014 and Zach Pascal to Conference USA honorable mention accolades. Vaughan led the league with 1,019 receiving yards and finished sixth in the league with 63 receptions. Vaughan's 12 touchdowns were tied for fourth in the country.

Vaughan became the third receiver in six years to have a 1,000-yard receiving season and he also recorded a single-season career best with 63 catches. Pascal put up single-season career bests in catches, yards and touchdowns.

In 2013, ODU finished in the top-10 in the FBS in scoring offense with 42.3 points per game, seventh in total offense at 519 yards per game, and sixth in passing offense at 359.4 per game.

The Monarchs had four wide receivers that had 40 or more receptions and five more who had 15 or more catches during the year.

In 2012, the Monarchs led the FCS in scoring offense with 45.15 points per game, passing offense at 393.85 and total offense with 548.23 yards per game. Burden's wide receiving crew accounted for 347.7 receiving yards per game, led by first-team All-CAA selection Nick Mayers, who led the team with 94.8 per game and finished tied for second in the nation with 16 TD receptions.

In total, four ODU receivers finished the season with 55 or more receptions, while the receivers accounted for 41 of the 44 touchdown passes thrown by Taylor Heinicke.

Burden returned to the Monarchs after spending the 2011 season coaching the wide receivers at the University of Richmond. Among those under Burden's watch included All-CAA first-team selection Tre Gray.

Originally joining the start-up Old Dominion program in 2007, Burden helped to build the Monarch program from the ground up. On the sidelines coaching the defensive backs, he helped Old Dominion capture a 9-2 overall record in their first season of play in 2009 and a 8-3 mark in 2010 as the Monarchs became the winningest start-up program in FCS history.

Prior to coming to Old Dominion, Burden spent a season as an assistant at Fork Union Military Academy where he worked with the wide receivers and defensive backs, while also serving as the passing game coordinator and recruiting liaison.

Burden earned his undergraduate degree in psychology in 2006 from Virginia Military Institute, where he played wide receiver for the Keydets. His name is still listed among the Big South's all-time leaders in receptions and receiving yards. The three-time all-conference honoree also held the school record with a reception in 34 consecutive games.

A native of Virginia Beach, Virginia, Burden has three children: Zaria, Zamir and Langston.

@SSearels

Stacy Searels, the former offensive line coach at Texas, Georgia and LSU, and an All-America offensive lineman as a player at Auburn, was named the offensive line coach at Virginia Tech in January 2014 and is in his second season with the Hokies. Just prior to the 2012 Alamo Bowl, Searels was promoted to assistant head coach for the Longhorns.

His first year in Blacksburg saw the line make a marked improvement late in the season as the running game took off. Laurence Gibson was taken in the seventh round of the 2015 NFL Draft following a successful senior season.

In 2013, his final season in Austin, Searels' line enabled the Longhorns to finish 36th in the country in rushing offense and 17th in sacks allowed per game. Trey Hopkins was named first-team All-Big 12 while Donald Hawkins secured a spot on the second team. In 2012, the offensive line, which was without a senior starter, allowed the opposition to post just 4.1 tackles for loss per game, which ranked tied for third in the country.

During his first season at Texas, Searels helped the Longhorns rank 21st nationally and third in the Big 12 with 210.4 rushing yards per game.

Searels joined the Longhorns after coaching the offensive line at Georgia for four seasons (2007-10). He added the duties of running game coordinator in 2009. During his time there, the Bulldogs ranked in the top 25 in the nation in fewest sacks allowed three times, including ranking sixth and leading the SEC in 2009 with just 12.

Searels arrived at Georgia in January 2007, after serving four years coaching the offensive line at LSU from 2003-06. During that time, the Tigers won a National Championship (2003), an SEC Championship (2003), and two SEC West titles (2003 and 2005), while compiling a 44-8 record.

Searels made a habit of producing All-America linemen for LSU. He coached two first-team All-

Americans in Stephen Peterman and Rimington Award winner Ben Wilkerson and a second-team All-America selection in Andrew Whitworth. Five of his Tigers' linemen earned spots on NFL rosters.

Searels joined the staff at LSU after a two-year stint as offensive line coach at Cincinnati. Prior to joining Cincinnati, Searels served as an assistant coach at Appalachian State from 1994-2000, helping the I-AA Mountaineers to five playoff appearances and a pair of Southern Conference titles. While at Appalachian State, Searels was presented with the NCAA Award of Valor, recognizing him for his act of courage following a head-on collision involving a van carrying members of the Mountaineers' football team and support staff on Sept. 30, 2000.

Searels got his start in coaching as a graduate assistant at Auburn in 1992, working with a Tigers squad that posted a perfect 11-0 mark in 1993.

A three-year starter on the offensive line at Auburn, Searels earned first-team All-America honors from both The Associated Press and Football News as a senior in 1987. He blocked for Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson in 1985 and All-American Brent Fullwood in 1986 before becoming a fourth-round draft pick by the San Diego Chargers in 1988. He played two seasons with the Chargers before moving to the Miami Dolphins in 1990, where they made the playoffs that season. He ended his professional career in 1991 with the New York/New Jersey Knights of the World League of American Football.

A native of Trion, Georgia, Searels graduated from Auburn with a degree in marketing and transportation in 1990. He added a master's degree in higher education administration from Auburn in 1995.

Searels is married to the former Patricia Hale, and they have two daughters: Taylor and Savannah.

Bryan Stinespring, an integral member of the Virginia Tech staff as both a coach and recruiter, is in his third season as recruiting coordinator at Virginia Tech while also overseeing the tight ends.

Stinespring was Tech's offensive coordinator from December 2001 through the end of the 2012 season.

The 2015 season marks Stinespring's 23rd year as a full-time coach on Frank Beamer's staff at Tech. In 2006, he returned to coaching the tight ends after eight seasons as the offensive line coach.

Last season, redshirt freshman Bucky Hodges flourished under Stinespring's tutelage, setting a new school record for touchdown catches in a season by a tight end. The tight end combination of Hodges and Ryan Malleck combined to catch 69 passes for 721 yards and nine touchdowns.

During his time as the offensive line coach, one of Stinespring's star pupils, center Jake Grove, won the 2003 Rimington Trophy and became the university's third unanimous All-American. He was the first center taken in the 2004 NFL Draft.

In 2011, junior tailback David Wilson broke the school's single-season rushing record en route to ACC Player of the Year honors and becoming an NFL first-round draft pick. His offense also featured the top two receivers in school history and Jacobs Blocking Trophy recipient Blake DeChristopher at tackle.

In 2010, Stinespring's offense flourished and was led by ACC Player of the Year Tyrod Taylor who quarterbacked the Hokies to an ACC title. In 2009, Ryan Williams led a rushing offense that ranked 14th in the country; and, in 2007, Stinespring had four players from his offense taken in the NFL Draft, including offensive tackle Duane Brown in the first round. In 2005, three of his linemen were named to the All-ACC team with two of them earning first-team honors.

Stinespring took over the offensive line duties in the spring of 1998 and helped mold Tech's young line into a unit that showed steady improvement during the '98 season. Two members of that line – tackle Derek Smith and guard Dwight Vick – went on to sign with NFL teams.

In 1999 and 2000, the offensive line helped clear the way as the Hokies set new BIG EAST rushing marks in back-to-back seasons. Center Keith Short, guard Matt Lehr and tackle Dave Kadela all earned second-team All-BIG EAST honors in '99. Lehr repeated as a second-team pick in 2000, while Kadela moved to first team. In 2002, tackle Anthony Davis earned all-conference honors as the offensive front cleared the way for record-setting tailbacks Lee Suggs and Kevin Jones, who combined for over 2,100 yards.

Prior to taking over the O-line duties, Stinespring coached Tech's tight ends and assisted with the offensive line for five seasons. He was the Hokies' recruiting coordinator for eight years (1994-2001) and continues to be instrumental in helping attract top high school talent to campus. In 2001, he served as Tech's assistant head coach along with his other duties.

Stinespring initially joined the Tech staff in 1990 as a graduate assistant coach and spent two seasons in that capacity helping with the offensive line. After serving as the director of sports programs in 1992, he was elevated to a full-time coaching position prior to the 1993 season.

A native of Clifton Forge, Virginia, Stinespring was a walk-on player for James Madison University in the early 1980s. He is married to the former Shelley Franklin of Richmond, Virginia. Bryan and Shelley have a son, Daniel, twin daughters, Caroline and Olivia, and another daughter, Ella.

TECH DEFENSE

"Our basic philosophy is that we want to be an aggressive, attacking-style defense that can adjust to all the different offenses, but at the same time, we want to dictate to the offense and not have them dictate to us what we're doing. We can pressure you in different ways; we can give you front-four pressure, we can give you blitz pressure and we can give you coverage pressure. I think that's what makes us unique more so than any other program in the country."

Regarded as one of the top defensive minds in the game, Bud Foster is in his 29th season at Virginia Tech. The 2006 Broyles Award winner has helped mold nationally ranked defenses on a yearly basis during his 20 years as a coordinator.

Foster, who was a finalist three previous times (1999, 2001, 2005) for the award given to the nation's top assistant football coach, has gained a well-deserved reputation as one of the nation's most respected defensive coaches. Over the past three seasons Tech leads all FBS programs, permitting opponents to convert at a mere 29.0 percent rate on third downs.

Foster's 2014 squad was young, but led by All-American Kendall Fuller as the group finished the season strong. The 2013 unit was one of his best team units, finishing fourth in the country in total defense and finishing in the top 15 of six other major team categories. A pair of All-Americans and the league's defensive rookie of the year helped lead a unit that placed eight players on one of the two All-ACC teams.

After an off year by Foster's standards in 2010, the Hokies roared back to form in 2011 despite starting nine freshmen or sophomores for most of the season after injuries claimed three starters for the year. His defense finished seventh in the country in scoring defense and 10th in total defense. The 2012 squad finished the season strong, placing 14th in pass efficiency defense and 18th in total defense.

In 2008, despite losing seven starters to NFL camps from the 2007 team, his young and inexperienced group finished seventh in the nation in total defense and in the top 20 of five other categories. In 2009, his group rounded into form late and finished 12th in the country in total defense and was led by All-American Cody Grimm. His young group led the nation in 2010 in turnover margin and tied for second in the country in passes intercepted (23) with All-American Jayron Hosley leading the way as the Hokies claimed another ACC title.

The 2007 group was also among the nation's elite, featuring a pair of first-team All-Americans in Brandon Flowers and Xavier Adibi, along with six all-conference selections.

The 2006 squad led the nation in total defense for the second straight year. The unit also led the nation in passing and scoring defense. The 2005 group led the country in total defense and ranked among the top three teams in three other categories. It produced two first-team All-Americans along with four all-conference players. Tech's 2004 defense ranked in the top five nationally in total defense, pass defense, scoring defense, interceptions and turnovers gained.

After helping Tech to the national championship game in 1999, Foster was recognized as the 2000 Division I-A Defensive Coordinator of the Year by American Football Coach magazine. Tech's 1999 defensive unit led Division I-A in scoring defense and ranked third in two other categories.

Following numerous seasons, Foster has been pursued by big-time programs for their defensive coordinator position, but he has opted to continue his long-standing football association with Beamer. That association dates back to 1979 when Foster was a strong safety and defensive end at Murray State and Beamer was the defensive coordinator. Foster began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at MSU in 1981, Beamer's first season as the head coach.

Since coming to Tech in 1987, Foster has worn several coaching hats. He coached the inside linebackers for one year in 1987, then tutored the outside linebackers for the next five seasons. Foster assumed responsibility for both sets of linebackers prior to the 1993 season and also took over special teams coaching that year. The following year, he coached the inside linebackers and special teams. Foster assumed the position of co-defensive coordinator in 1995 and took over as the sole defensive coordinator in '96. The inside linebackers continue to be his primary responsibility.

A 1981 graduate of Murray State, Foster was an outstanding strong safety and outside linebacker from 1977 to 1980. After two years as a graduate assistant at his alma mater, Foster was elevated to a full-time staff position. The Nokomis, Illinois, native coached outside linebackers for three seasons before taking over the inside and outside linebackers in 1986. He also served as MSU's recruiting coordinator and worked with special teams.

Foster and his wife Jacqueline have three children: Amy Porter, Grant and Hillary. Daughter Amy has a daughter, Jaiden Olivia.

Former Virginia Tech All-American and Tech Sports Hall of Fame member Cornell Brown is in his fifth season on the Hokies' coaching staff, working with the outside linebackers and helping out with the defensive ends.

Last season, in limited action, Derek Di Nardo quietly had a standout season, recording 30 tackles, including three sacks, two fumble recoveries and an interception.

In 2014, Josh Trimble started five games at outside linebacker and recorded 20 tackles and a sack for a defense that finished fourth nationally in total defense and in the top 15 of six other major team categories.

Brown joined the coaching ranks in 2005 as a coaching assistant working with linebackers for the Cologne Centurions in the NFL-Europe League. Brown became a full time defensive line coach for the Frankfurt Galaxy the following year and helped the team to back-to-back World Bowl appearances, winning the league title in 2006. While coaching the defensive line, he helped develop free-agent tackle Remi Ayodele of the Super Bowl Champion New Orleans Saints.

NFL-Europe's schedule allowed Brown to also work as a graduate assistant coach at Virginia Tech during the Hokies' 2006 and 2007 seasons. He helped develop defensive units that led the nation in total defense and scoring defense in '06 and were ranked third and fourth, respectively, in those categories in 2007. He had a helping hand in developing draft choices Chris Ellis, Carlton Powell and Jason Worilds.

Brown attended Virginia Tech and played defensive end from 1993 through 1996, helping the Hokies to a bowl game each season.

Brown became the first Virginia Tech football player to gain consensus All-America honors as a junior when he was named to five first teams in 1995. Brown was a first-team A-A pick by AP, UPI, the Football Writers Association, The Sporting News and Football News. He finished the year with 103 total tackles, including a BIG EAST-leading 14 sacks.

He was selected National Defensive Player of the Year by Football News and was one of five finalists for the Defensive Player of the Year.

In 1996, Brown missed three games, but still earned first-team honors from Walter Camp and second-team recognition from AP. He posted eight sacks, five other tackles behind the line, 19 quarterback hurries and 58 total tackles during the '96 season.

Brown had his Tech jersey retired on Nov. 20, 2002, during the West Virginia game. He was also inducted into the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame in April of 2013.

A sixth-round draft pick of the Baltimore Ravens, the Lynchburg, Virginia, native played seven seasons in the NFL and was a member of the Ravens' Super Bowl XXXV championship team.

Brown has a son, Enzo.

Former Virginia Tech defensive standout and NFL product Torrian Gray, who is in his 10th season as the Hokies' defensive secondary coach and third season as the passing game coordinator, has made a big impact on Tech's defense.

In 2014, he mentored Kendall Fuller, who earned All-America honors, and the Hokies featured one of the nation's stingiest pass defenses.

Gray relied on a pair of true freshman for most of the 2013 season as his seniors were sidelined with injuries. The duo of Fuller and Brandon Facyson combined for 11 interceptions and finished first and second, respectively, in the ACC Defensive Rookie of the Year voting. Despite missing almost all of the final five games, Kyle Fuller was named a second-team All-American and helped lead a group that finished fifth nationally in pass efficiency defense, sixth in interceptions and eighth in passing defense. Kyle Fuller was the 14th overall pick in the 2014 NFL Draft by the Chicago Bears and Antone Exum was selected in the sixth round by Minnesota.

In 2011, all four members of his secondary made the All-ACC squad. That secondary helped Tech finish 14th in the country in pass efficiency defense and tied for 18th nationally in passes intercepted. In 2012, the secondary helped pace a defense that finished 14th in pass efficiency defense once again and 24th in passing defense.

In 2010, the defense – led by first-team All-American Jayron Hosley – finished tied for second in the country in passes intercepted. Hosley led the nation with nine picks and combined with Rashad Carmichael for 13 total interceptions, the most in the nation for a cornerback combo. Carmichael went on to be drafted by the Houston Texans in 2011 and Hosley was taken by the New York Giants in the third round of the 2012 Draft.

His 2009 group finished 11th in the country in pass defense and eighth in pass efficiency defense and was led by eventual NFL Pro Bowler Kam Chancellor. In 2008, led by All-American Victor Harris, Gray's secondary was ranked among the nation's leaders in pass defense (129.1 ypg) and interceptions (20).

In 2007, Gray oversaw a pass efficiency defense ranked fifth in the country, led by three All-ACC performers in Harris, Brandon Flowers and D.J. Parker. Flowers thrived under Gray, earning All-America honors for the second time, including first-team honors en route to becoming a second-round pick in the NFL Draft. In 2006, Gray led a secondary that ranked as the nation's No. 1 pass defense and the No. 2 team in pass efficiency defense.

Prior to coming to Blacksburg, Gray spent the previous two seasons as assistant defensive backs coach with the NFL's Chicago Bears. During the 2005 season, the Bears ranked fifth in the NFL in passing defense and finished tied for second in interceptions (24) as Nathan Vasher and Mike Brown were both elected to the Pro Bowl.

Gray began his coaching career at the University of Maine, serving as defensive backs coach for two seasons (2000-01). Gray spent the 2002 and 2003 seasons as defensive backs coach at the University of Connecticut.

During his playing career at Virginia Tech (1992-96), Gray helped the Hokies to four consecutive bowls for the first time in school history. He played on 97 percent of the Hokies' defensive plays over his last three seasons, starting at rover in 1994 and '95, and handling the starting free safety duties in 1996.

Gray was named All-BIG EAST all three seasons and helped Tech to conference championships his last two years. He shared the team lead in interceptions in both 1993 and 1994 and was named the Hokies' Outstanding Defensive Back in 1996. Gray earned a bachelor's degree in consumer studies from Tech.

He was drafted in the second round of the 1997 NFL Draft (49th overall) by the Minnesota Vikings. He started five games as a rookie, including two playoff contests. He contributed as a starter in the nickel package and as a special teams player before retiring in the spring of 2000 due to a knee injury. The Vikings advanced to the playoffs in each of his three seasons.

A native of Lakeland, Florida, Gray has two daughters: Tori and Lexi.

Charley Wiles, a former All-America player for Frank Beamer at Murray State, has produced five All-Americans of his own since joining Beamer's Virginia Tech staff as defensive line coach in 1996. In 2013, he added the title of running game coordinator for a defense that has been stout against the rush, finishing in the top 40 nationally the past four seasons.

Last season, his line helped contribute 26 sacks as the Hokies finished third nationally in both sacks and tackles for loss. In 2012, he started four underclassmen for the most part along the line, and that group played a big part in finishing 19th in the country in sacks per game and tied for ninth in tackles for loss per game. In 2013, tackle Derrick Hopkins earned All-America honors and helped lead a group that finished 10th nationally in rushing defense and seventh in sacks.

In 1999, Corey Moore won the Mike Fox/Bronko Nagurski Award as the nation's best defensive player and the Lombardi Award as the best lineman. He also became Tech's second unanimous All-American and was chosen the BIG EAST Defensive Player of the Year two consecutive years. Brown was a two-time All-America pick, taking consensus honors as a junior in 1995 when he was named the National Defensive Player of the Year by Football News and the BIG EAST Defensive Player of the Year.

In 2005, Wiles helped mold end Darryl Tapp into a first-team All-America selection, a first-team All-ACC selection, and a Hendricks and Lott Awards finalist. Tapp now plays on Sundays for the Detroit Lions.

Wiles also coached John Engelberger, who was named to the second team on The Associated Press All-America team, and tackle David Pugh, who was a third-team All-America pick by The Sporting News. In 2008, end Chris Ellis and tackle Carlton Powell were both taken in the NFL Draft. In 2009, Jason Worilds flourished under his guidance and was drafted in the second round by the Pittsburgh Steelers. Two other players also signed NFL free agent deals.

In all, 26 of Wiles' players have won all-conference honors, including Tapp, who was a first-team All-ACC pick during each of the Hokies' first two seasons in the league. In 2013, all four starting linemen made one of the two All-ACC squads and five linemen were honored last season.

During the 1999 season, Wiles coached a veteran line which he helped mold into what The Sporting News rated as the best Division I-A defensive line in the college ranks prior to the season. That line helped the Hokies finish first in the nation in scoring defense and third in rushing defense and total defense. Tech's 2001 defensive line was rated as the fourth-best in Division I-A by The Sporting News.

Wiles is on his second tour of duty at Tech. He originally joined Beamer's Tech staff as a graduate assistant in 1987 and worked in that capacity for two years. Wiles first had a player-coach relationship with Beamer, when Beamer was the head man at Murray State. Wiles won Kodak Division I-AA All-America honors as an offensive lineman in 1986.

When he left Tech after the 1988 season, Wiles spent a year on the staff at East Tennessee State. He then returned to Murray State for a six-year coaching tenure, winding up as the Racers' co-defensive coordinator. In 1995, he helped coach the Racers to an 11-0 regular-season mark and a berth in the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs. Wiles also served as MSU's recruiting coordinator, helping land many of the Racers' top players.

When Wiles rejoined Beamer at Tech in 1996, he fulfilled a goal he had set during his first stint in Blacksburg. The Hokies have competed in bowl games during each season since he rejoined the staff.

A native of DeLand, Florida, and a three-sport star at DeLand High School, Wiles is married to the former Andrea Wilder of Booneville, Indiana. They have a daughter, Kendall, and a son, Eric.

ASSOCIATE ATHLETICS DIRECTOR FOR FOOTBALL OPERATIONS

The Virginia Tech athletics department could choose no better person to head up football operations than associate athletics director for football operations Dr. John Ballein, whose rich history with the university makes him the perfect person for the job. Ballein, who received his doctorate of education from Virginia Tech in 2006 and worked on Coach Frank Beamer's first Virginia Tech staff in 1987 as a graduate assistant coach, handles all administrative and operational duties dealing with the football program and is considered Coach Beamer's right-hand man.

Ballein served as departmental recruiting coordinator prior to being promoted to assistant director of athletics for football operations in 1996 and, in 2000, received another promotion to his current position for his excellent work throughout the years with Tech football.

A native of Bentleyville, Pennsylvania, Ballein's accomplishments as a multifaceted athlete at Bentworth High School in football, baseball and wrestling, led to his 2013 induction into the Pennsylvania Sports Hall of Fame (Washington-Greene Chapter). Ballein excelled at football where he starred on the defensive side of the ball, setting several Bearcats records, including single-game tackles, single-season tackles and most points earned on defense for tackles, assists and interceptions. Ballein was named Bentworth's Outstanding Defensive Player, and was a Tri-County all-star and the winner of the Paul Silver All-Around Athlete of the Year award in 1979.

Ballein went on to play linebacker at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, where he graduated with a degree in health and physical education in 1983. He later earned his master's in education from Old Dominion University in 1987. In 1983-84, Ballein served as a teacher and a football coach at Woodrow Wilson High School in Portsmouth, Virginia, and then at Western Branch High in Chesapeake, Virginia, in 1985-86.

What makes Ballein so important is the rapport he has with all the players. His office, adjacent to Coach Beamer's, is a preferred hangout for the players, and he is one of the most beloved and respected members of the staff.

"It can be intimidating making the transition from high school to college," said former Hokie cornerback and 2014 first-round NFL Draft pick Kyle Fuller. "But something my brother [Vincent] told me stuck with me. He said that if I had any issues, whether it was football-related, academics, private life or if I simply just needed somebody to talk to, find John Ballein. I promise you that I was in his office more than once. The players respect John because they know he cares, and that he wants what's best for them as people. My brother Kendall is still in the program, and now that I'm gone, I told him that if he had any concerns at all, find John Ballein!"

Ballein is married to the former Stephanie Green, a Hokie basketball player in her undergraduate days, now the senior woman administrator/associate athletics director at Radford University. They have two daughters, Jordan Gray and Jalyln Ann.

BRUCE GARNES DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF FOOTBALL OPERATIONS

Bruce Garnes, a 1994 graduate of Virginia Tech, is in his 17th year assisting with operations for the Hokies' football office and his fourth as deputy director.

For 16 years, he has served as the liaison between the academic community and football and has helped the Hokies with their recruiting efforts. Garnes also assists Dr. John Ballein, the associate athletics director for football operations, with Tech's coaching clinics.

A native of Martinsville, Virginia, Garnes graduated from Tech with a bachelor's degree in sport management. He received a master's at Tech in counseling education in 1996.

A 1989 graduate of Magna Vista High School in Ridgeway, Virginia, Garnes, 44, was married to the former Ashleigh Waddle in 2014 and enjoys golf, jogging and watching all Virginia Tech athletic teams compete.

AN EDGE IN PREPARATION

To help prepare athletes for game day, the video office equips Hokie football players and coaches with everything required to scout opponents and to improve personal performance.

Virginia Tech's XOS Technology, a system also utilized by NFL teams, gives the coaching staff a wealth of information at its disposal in a matter of seconds. The department gathers video of Tech practices and games in addition to opponent footage and labels every play in terms of down, distance, formation, protection and end result. This information is matched with video and then entered into a computer database accessible to coaches and players at any time.

Every meeting room is equipped with high-definition laptops and projectors to provide the best quality video for the team. Each meeting room is connected to the computer database, giving coaches and players 24-hour, easy access to information. All of the coaches' offices are also equipped with computers, so that each member of the staff can instantaneously pull up footage of any scenario. In addition to the video provided in the meeting rooms, the players and coaches also have access to video of practice, teaching tapes and opponent games via iPads, which allows them to study video anytime and anywhere.

"The greatest teaching tool is the ability to show someone what they're doing, right or wrong," head coach Frank Beamer said. "With our video equipment, we can do that quickly. The ease with which we can do these things and the way we can put certain plays and scenarios together makes us more efficient in preparing for games on Saturday."

FOOTBALL SUPPORT STAFF

CHUCK CANTOR is in his second year as the director for player personnel for Virginia Tech football program as he oversees all aspects of the football recruiting process – from official and unofficial visits to academic eligibility of prospects to social media and camps.

Cantor came to Virginia Tech following a year at Temple University as the coordinator of external operations/on-campus recruiting coordinator. While there, he helped coordinate all prospect visits, helped oversee communication processes, kept up with prospect academic eligibility and coordinated the advance identification of potential student-athletes for the Owls.

Cantor worked at LIU-C.W. Post as the receivers coach in 2013, and prior to that, he worked as an offensive graduate assistant at Middle Tennessee State in 2012. From 2008-11, he worked with current Georgia head coach Mark Richt as an assistant athletic recruiting coordinator. While at Georgia, Cantor spearheaded the day-to-day recruiting coordination and was an integral part of the recruiting efforts that landed Georgia's "Dream Team" recruiting class of 2011 considered by many to be the top recruiting class in the country. He also played a big role in coordinating parts of the Mark Richt Football Camp. In 2007, Cantor served as a recruiting assistant at Rutgers under then-head coach Greg Schiano for a year. Prior to that, he worked at his alma mater – Florida State – as a graduate assistant.

Cantor, a native of New Hyde Park, New York, graduated from Florida State University in 2006 with a degree in social science education and sport management and earned his master's from Florida State in 2011 (sport management).

THOMAS GUERRY is in his second year as the director of high school relations for the Virginia Tech football program as he is tasked with enhancing Tech's recruiting efforts by taking the lead on communicating with high school football coaches, assisting with official and unofficial visits and working on increasing the social media presence of Virginia Tech football.

Guerry came to Tech from Georgia, where he worked for the University of Georgia Athletic Association starting in 2010 as an assistant to the director of football operations. In that capacity, he coordinated itineraries, practice schedules and documents for coaches and support staff, and also served as a football operations liaison for athletic department staff during away games. Guerry also assisted with recruiting visits, was responsible for updating MarkRicht.com on a daily basis, and assisted with character education and the UGA Football Mentor Program.

In 2011, Guerry was promoted to football recruiting assistant and served in that position for three years. In that capacity, he helped coordinate all official and unofficial recruiting visits, events and camps, managed recruiting travel expenses and compliance documentation, as well as maintained an online recruiting database of more than 5,000 recruits. He worked closely with the UGA Athletic Association administration to ensure full compliance with NCAA rules and regulations, and he also helped manage more than 70 game-day recruiting hosts and student workers. Guerry was responsible for assessing academic performance of recruits based on NCAA, SEC and UGA academic standards.

A native of Madison, Mississippi, Guerry graduated from Mississippi State University in 2008 with a degree in business administration and earned his master's from Mississippi State in 2010 (M.B.A. with a minor in sport administration).

ERIK LEWIS is in his second year as the assistant director of equipment services for football. It is his responsibility to oversee all the equipment needs for Virginia Tech's football program.

Prior to joining the Virginia Tech staff in 2014, Lewis spent 10 years in the equipment room at East Carolina University. He worked for two years as an assistant director and then spent the final eight years as the director of athletics equipment. He oversaw all equipment and apparel acquisition for ECU's 19 sport programs, and he played a key role facilitating and maintaining the department's relationship with Nike.

Before landing the job at ECU, Lewis was a student at Marshall and worked as a student manager in the equipment room all four years.

Lewis graduated from Marshall University in 2002 with a degree in sports management and marketing. He earned Athletic Equipment Managers Association certification in June of 2003 and was named the organization's District III Equipment Manager of the Year in 2013. His department was also recognized in 2008 as Conference USA's Equipment Staff of the Year.

A native of Hurricane, West Virginia, Lewis is married to the former Shannon St. George, and they are the parents of two daughters, Gwen and Merrylyn.

SHARON MCCLOSKEY, longtime senior associate AD and senior woman administrator, retired in June of 2015 after more than 30 years of working in the Tech athletics department.

McCloskey's impact on Tech's football program was immeasurable. She started her career at Tech in 1984 as the football receptionist and eventually became the first woman in college athletics to hold the position of recruiting coordinator at the Division I level.

As the recruiting coordinator, she proved to be an innovator, changing schedules for official recruiting visits to make academics the focal point of the visit. She arranged for prospects to meet with professors, department heads and key figures during their trips to campus.

McCloskey was promoted several times during her career, and she even served as the interim AD for several months after then-AD Dave Braine left for Georgia Tech. She received admiration from Hokie Nation for twice beating cancer, and for her career accomplishments and her perseverance, she was inducted into the Virginia Tech Sports Hall of Fame in 2012.

McCloskey will remain in the area during retirement and help with the running of the Hokies' Monogram Club, a group of former letterwinners at Tech.

WALK-ONS AT VIRGINIA TECH

From walk-on to NFL draftee. Sound improbable? Not at Virginia Tech, where it's happened numerous times.

Take John Engelberger for example. The San Francisco 49ers selected Engelberger as the 35th overall pick in the 2000 NFL Draft.

Engelberger, who arrived in Blacksburg as a walk-on in 1995, was following in the footsteps of tight end John Burke, who graduated from Tech's walk-on program as a fourth-round draft pick to the New England Patriots in 1994.

Nine years ago, Will Montgomery was taken by the Carolina Panthers in the seventh round and has started 71 regular season games over the past 10 seasons at center for the Panthers, New York Jets, Washington Redskins and Denver Broncos and now suits up in Chicago.

And in April of 2010, Cody Grimm completed his fairy tale story by being selected in the seventh round by Tampa Bay. He arrived at Tech as an undersized walk-on who played special teams for three years, earning a scholarship along the way for his hard work. But he had a breakout senior season, one in which he earned All-America honors and caught the eyes of NFL scouts in the end. He started several games at safety for the Bucs in his first three seasons, returning an interception for a touchdown.

Walk-on players are an important part of Virginia Tech football. With scholarship reductions, not all high school football players earn scholarships to compete in college. But that doesn't mean there isn't an opportunity for those individuals, especially at Virginia Tech, where walk-on athletes have a history of contributing.

The walk-ons at Virginia Tech are treated in the same first-class manner as the rest of the squad. Former walk-ons have eventually earned scholarships, earned starting positions, gained all-conference and All-America honors and some eventually played pro football.

"The important thing for a walk-on is to know he's going to be given a chance," Tech head coach Frank Beamer said. "The way you track that is to look at programs around the country to see how many scholarships are given to walk-ons.

"We're one of the top two or three programs in the country in that category. So for a guy who's interested in walking on, there's not a better place than right here at Virginia Tech. We give people a chance and we treat them the same as everybody else."

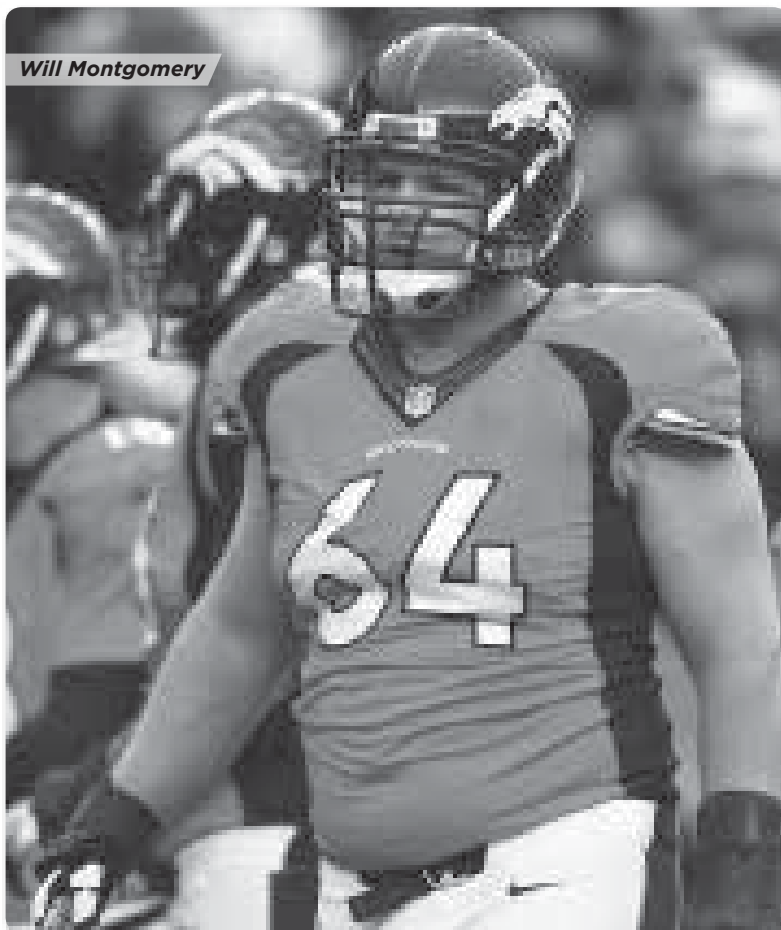

Engelberger was a recruited walk-on, meaning he was invited to try out for the team. He arrived in Blacksburg in 1995 as a 6-foot-4, 210-pound tight end and got into the weight room, transforming his body into that of a big-time college football player. After his redshirt year, he earned a scholarship for his tireless work ethic. Thanks to endless hours of work on the practice field and in the weight room, Engelberger finished his career as one of the best defensive ends in Tech history. His dedication to the game paid off as he played nine years in the NFL as a starting defensive end for the San Francisco 49ers and Denver Broncos.

Burke walked on in 1989 and eventually earned a starting position for the Hokies. He was a four-year letterman at Virginia Tech (1990-93) where he caught 21 passes for 303 yards and two touchdowns. Burke was drafted by the New England Patriots in 1994 and was a member of the Patriots' 1997 Super Bowl XXXI team. He also saw action with the New York Jets, the San Diego Chargers and the Oakland Raiders.

Burke, Engelberger, Grimm and Montgomery aren't the only Hokies to excel in the walk-on program. Tech had five walk-on players start or see playing time in the 1996 Orange Bowl against Nebraska. All five of those former walk-ons earned scholarships and paid big dividends for Tech in the 1996 season.

None of these players would have lived their dream and reached their potential if Virginia Tech hadn't extended the opportunity they were seeking. Their eventual success has become a cherished part of the Hokie football tradition and heritage.

"Our walk-on program is so successful for two reasons," said Dr. John Ballein, the associate athletics director for football operations, who directs the program. "First, our coaches work at it. When they're out on the road, they're looking for players who can fit into our program. Secondly, we have a head coach in Coach Beamer who is loyal to each player in this program."

Tech's walk-on program has provided countless young men a chance to play collegiate football and prove that the evaluation and recruiting process is far from flawless. It allows a young man to mature physically, improve his football skills and contribute to the success of Virginia Tech football.

"No one really knows the difference between a walk-on and a scholarship player because each person is treated exactly the same," Ballein said. "Players know they have an opportunity to earn a scholarship and that they'll be in the best weight program in the country. Combine all those factors and you have the reason why Tech's walk-on program has been successful."

There are two types of walk-ons at Virginia Tech: the invited walk-on and the true walk-on. The invited walk-ons are players recruited by coaches to come into the Tech program. The true walk-ons are students already enrolled at Tech who try to earn a spot in the program. Tech has two workouts (one in the spring and one in the fall) for these players. From there, some are invited back to try and earn a spot on the team.

Hokie walk-ons not only get the chance to play in one of the best programs in the nation, they get a chance to play for one of the best coaches in college football as well.

"I think our walk-on program is successful because we work at it," Beamer said. "We work at recruiting guys who will have a chance to be a player in our program. We evaluate them very carefully. We only have so many spots for walk-ons now and so it is very important that we get kids who have a chance to earn a scholarship.

"I've always liked walk-ons because a lot of them have something to prove and they work harder and they go right by some scholarship guys as far as playing time."

The success of the Tech walk-on program continues to grow right along with the success of the football program. This year the Hokies will welcome another class of walk-ons who are anxious to prove they could be the next great walk-on story at Virginia Tech.

Student-Athlete Academic Support Services (SAASS) is committed to providing a comprehensive academic and personal development program with counseling and advising for student-athletes, offering academic counseling to ensure students receive a complete system of support consistent with university and NCAA policies.

Student-athletes have access to the department's spacious facilities, located in the West Side of Lane Stadium. Opened during the 2006-07 academic year, the SAASS suite, located in the Quillen Family Academic Center, features 17 private tutor rooms, a state-of-the-art classroom, a 36-station computer lab with printer access, a conference room, three quiet areas for reading and studying and a reference library. To accommodate the busy schedules of all of Tech's student-athletes, the SAASS office is open and available for students to access from 8 a.m., until 10 p.m., during the weekdays and from 6 p.m., to 10 p.m., on the weekends. The SAASS office offers a tutor program available to Tech's student-athletes in both individual and group settings. Tutor services are available six days a week and the staff assures options for nearly every subject a student-athlete could request assistance in. The collection of SAASS programs housed in Lane Stadium guarantees that all student-athletes achieve success during their time at Virginia Tech.

Tech's football student-athletes have always seen great success in the classroom much in part to the help of the SAASS office. Since 2001, over 94 percent of Hokie seniors have earned their degree, and the the football team has earned its highest scores ever in the Academic Progress Rate (APR) in each of the past reports. Tech has also graduated at least 70 percent of its football class in 12 of the past 14 years, with former Hokie standouts Danny Coale and Chris Drager earning Academic All-America honors following the 2011 season.

Among FBS schools, Tech is annually among the best in the number of graduated players on the current roster. Current Tech seniors Dadi Nicolas, Luther Maddy, Ronny Vandyke, J.C. Coleman, Darius Redman and Michael Brewer help highlight these impressive numbers as they enter their final season at Virginia Tech having already earned college degrees.

OFFICE OF STUDENT-ATHLETE DEVELOPMENT

FOCUSING ON PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

At Virginia Tech, student-athletes don't just play sports. With help from the Office of Student-Athlete Development, Hokie student-athletes work outside the athletic venue to develop into responsible adults who are assets to their communities.

Led by the Virginia Tech Student-Athlete Advisory Committee, Hokie student-athletes volunteered countless hours in the local community last year. In addition, almost 400 Virginia Tech student-athletes and support group members earned a 3.00 grade-point average during one or both semesters, while achieving great success within athletics as well.

Inspired by the NCAA Student-Athlete Affairs commitment areas, the Office of Student-Athlete Development creates programs designed to enhance student-athletes in five areas: athletic excellence, academic excellence, personal and leadership development, community outreach and career development. In 2006, the program was recognized as a Division I-A "Program of Excellence" for establishing student welfare as the cornerstone of its operating principles.

STUDENT-ATHLETE ADVISORY COMMITTEE

The Student-Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) is a committee made up of student-athletes assembled to provide insight on the student-athlete experience. It also offers input on the rules, regulations and policies that affect student-athletes' lives on NCAA member institution campuses. Two members of each sports team serve on SAAC each academic year.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT

The Office of Student-Athlete Development aims to help student-athletes lead balanced lifestyles, encouraging emotional well-being, personal growth and decision-making skills. Each team is required to attend two personal development programs during the year to educate student-athletes.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT

Virginia Tech student-athletes go through their collegiate athletic experiences with the understanding that they will need to secure a job upon graduation. The Office of Student-Athlete Development works to enhance student-athlete career development by collaborating with the Virginia Tech Career Services Office. Student-athletes also receive assistance in learning about majors and minors, preparing for career fairs, and obtaining postgraduate scholarships and internships.

ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE

The Office of Student-Athlete Development is also responsible for nominating student-athletes for academic honors and awards. Athletes are nominated for on-campus, Atlantic Coast Conference and national awards. Student-athletes with a 3.0 GPA are rewarded and honored on the Athletic Director's Honor Roll. In 2014, 373 student-athletes and 125 members of support groups were named to this prestigious list, which was a large increase from the 395 who were honored during 2012.

COMMUNITY OUTREACH

Virginia Tech student-athletes are now involved more than ever in the local community. In conjunction with the mission of the Office of Student-Athlete Development and the Ut Prosim motto, student-athletes are encouraged to volunteer throughout their college experience.

In September of 2014, Augie Conte, Jonathan McLaughlin and Ken Ekanem attended the New River Valley United Way Kick Off Event. This event is held annually to let the community know that the organization is officially beginning their efforts to collect funds and serve their neighbors in need.

Over 20 football players have participated in one or more of the Herma's Readers reading days at local elementary schools. This program allows student-athletes to travel to elementary schools in Montgomery County to read to the students, encourage the importance of reading and a good education, and share with the students how they balance athletics and academics.

Ronny Vandyke has dedicated over 25 hours mentoring a small group of fifth graders at Kipps Elementary School. He goes on a bi-weekly basis to spend time talking to the students about the importance of decision making, focus, and serves as a support system for the young men.

In June, several members of the team attended the Adventure Club Summer Camp at Christiansburg Primary School for Sports Week. They worked with the elementary school campers on the basic moves and techniques of football, as well as the importance of teamwork.

Several student-athletes visited students at the New River Valley Juvenile Detention Home this past summer. As has been tradition in recent years, the team assisted the more than 9,000 students and their families move into the campus residence halls during move-in week in August through Hokie Helpers move-in campaign. Members of the team also visited veterans and bowled with them at the Armed Forces Retirement Home prior to competing in the 2014 Military Bowl.

ATHLETIC PERFORMANCE

ONE OF THE NATION'S TOP PROGRAMS HELPS STUDENT-ATHLETES GET BIGGER, FASTER AND STRONGER

Before the lights ever come on, before the players run out of the tunnel for the first game and before the first touchdown is ever scored, college football players work on getting themselves physically and mentally prepared for the rigors of a five-month season. Crucial to this process is the athletic performance program, which includes strength and conditioning, sports nutrition and sport psychology.

Thanks to the direction of Associate Athletics Director for Athletic Performance Mike Gentry, the Virginia Tech athletic performance program is among the best in the nation, helping to make the football program one of the best as well.

One of the main support centers of Tech football is the strength and conditioning program. The results of hard work by the staff and the student-athletes have paid huge dividends as the Hokies have pushed their streak to 22 consecutive bowl game appearances.

The Tech football strength program centers around four major lifts. The bench press and squat are lifts for building all-around strength; the push jerk and power clean help players develop explosive power. Gentry's program also includes conditioning and speed development, which the players do in the speed and agility room, Rector Field House, Tech's new indoor practice facility and on the Hokies' track facilities.

Each player has personal goals which he works to achieve. The team is broken down into four groups based on positions relevant to the players' body size. The players work to progress from Maroon, Orange, Hokie, Iron Hokie and Super Iron Hokie status to the Excalibur Award.

The Excalibur Award was created in 2000 in order to recognize the elite performers in a comprehensive battery of physical performance tests. These tests include: the previously mentioned weightlifting exercises, as well as 10- and 40-yard sprints, vertical jump, stand and reach flexibility test and the five-ten-five yard shuffle. All players are evaluated in this system during each evaluation period and ranked from superior to poor in each event. Players achieving a mean score of superior across all events earn the Excalibur Award.

Assisting Gentry in the weight rooms this year are seven full-time assistant strength and conditioning coaches. Former football players Jarrett Ferguson and Ryan Shuman serve as the senior director and director, respectively, of strength and conditioning for football.

DR. MIKE GENTRY ASSOCIATE ATHLETICS DIRECTOR FOR ATHLETIC PERFORMANCE

Responsibilities: As associate athletics director for athletic performance, Gentry's duties include overseeing the strength and conditioning training of athletes in all 22 varsity sports at Virginia Tech, and he is directly involved in training the football team. Gentry also supervises the sports nutrition and sport psychology programs.

Joined VT Staff: 1987; 29th season.

Record at Virginia Tech: Gentry was inducted into the USA Strength and Conditioning Coaches Hall of Fame in 2010. He was named the second-annual Samson Strength & Conditioning Coach of the Year in the March 2005 issue of American Football Monthly.

In May 2003, Gentry was honored by the Collegiate Strength and Conditioning Coaches when he was named a Master Strength and Conditioning Coach. Gentry was one of only 36 coaches in the country to have received the CSCC's highest award when he was honored. In 1995 and 1996, Gentry was recognized by the National Strength and Conditioning Association as a finalist for the National Strength and Conditioning Professional of the Year.

Prior to Virginia Tech: Gentry worked as an assistant strength coach at UNC and as the head strength and conditioning coach at East Carolina University prior to coming to Virginia Tech in February 1987.

Education: Western Carolina, 1979 (physical education); UNC Chapel Hill, 1981 (master's degree); Virginia Tech, 1999 (doctorate; curriculum and instruction with emphasis in motor behavior).

Family: Gentry has a son, Roy Christopher (Bo), a former member of the Hokie football team from 2008-2011. Gentry is married to the former Wendy Ann Williams.

The football strength staff for 2015: Jarrett Ferguson, Mike Gentry and Ryan Shuman.

THE FOOTBALL PROGRAM BOASTS TOP-OF-THE-LINE FACILITIES AND TRAINING PROGRAMS

- The team trains in the 17,000-square foot training center on the first level of the Merryman Athletic Center. The weight room facility features free-weight equipment, a full line of Hammer Strength equipment, 12 platforms and a 6,000-square foot state-of-the-art speed and agility room.
- Tech also uses a 10-by-40-yard sand pit located outdoors and adjacent to the weight room for resistive running drills to improve speed. The Hokies also have the practice fields for use in running drills.
- Players can also train in a new, state-of-the-art weight room located on the second floor of Cassell Coliseum. The new weight room, opened in 2012, is a two-level, 7,800-square foot facility that cost $1 million to build. It features 10 weight stations, a new sound system, televisions, a plyometrics and agility platform, new offices and the latest in weight room flooring. With the two facilities, the Hokies have more than 24,800-square feet of strength and conditioning training space.

ATHLETIC PERFORMANCE

CONTINUOUS IMPROVEMENT IS STANDARD FOR STRENGTH AND NUTRITION FACILITIES

Keeping Tech among the best in the nation in facilities and student-athlete care, the Athletic Performance department has made several upgrades over the past several years. The Nutrition Oasis has moved into a bigger space, now occupying the front two-thirds of the former football lounge area. The newly renovated Nutrition Oasis acts as a fueling station for athletes to “bookend” their training with pre-exercise and recovery fuel. Fueling station for the football team has been constructed in the players’ lounge, as well. By upgrading and quadrupling in size, these spaces offer smoothie bars, recovery beverages, fresh fruit, nuts, bagels and Gatorade products, as well as space for nutrition education and food demos.

The strength and conditioning department has also made improvements. Tech replaced the floors in the 17,000 square foot training center to match that of the W.A. and Mae Street Olympic Sports Complex that opened three years ago in Cassell Coliseum. Everlast UltraTile is the latest in weight room flooring and now covers the floor and weight rack areas of both of Tech’s weight rooms. The Hokies now have more than 30,000 square feet of strength and conditioning space through the two performance centers and a 6,000 square foot agility room, which had a new Mondo turf floor installed to revamp the room and change the color and design as well.

ATHLETIC PERFORMANCE

SPORT PSYCHOLOGY

The Virginia Tech Athletics Department contracts with the Thomas E. Cook Counseling Center to provide psychological services for its student-athletes through the Sport Psychology Office. Dr. Gary Bennett coordinates the sport psychology department, which offers psychological and performance enhancement services for student-athletes. The mission of the sport psychology office is to promote student-athlete learning and development. Consistent with the university's mission to "educate the whole person," the Sport Psychology Program promotes the academic, intellectual, social, emotional, athletic, and personal development of student-athletes.

On average, Bennett conducts over 50 individual sessions per week and meets weekly with teams as the need arises.

The response to the sport psychology program has been positive. The student-athletes are very receptive to the services offered by the doctors. The sport psychology office reaches out to student-athletes who may not have considered going to the counseling service that is offered to all students at Virginia Tech.

DR. GARY BENNETT

SPORT PSYCHOLOGIST

Responsibilities: Bennett meets with student-athletes on an individual basis for personal counseling and to discuss the mental aspects of the game. He also works on team building, communication and performance enhancement. Bennett has taught and supervised pre-doctoral level interns.

Joined VT Athletics Staff: 2000 (full time since 2007); 16th year.

Record at Virginia Tech: Bennett began working at Virginia Tech in 1995 at the Cook Counseling Center. Now, as the sport psychologist, he also serves on the committees for nutrition, performance and substance abuse; and the planning committee for the "Summit for Student-Athlete Success" events. He also works with various teams in the area of performance enhancement.

Education: Centre (Ky.) College, 1981, B.A. English, where he played baseball; University of Kentucky, 1988, master's in rehabilitation counseling; UK, 1995, Ph.D. in counseling psychology.

Of Note: Bennett is licensed as a clinical psychologist and has additional training in sport psychology. He is certified as a sport psychology consultant by the Association of Applied Sport Psychology and is a member of Division 47 (exercise and sport psychology) of the American Psychology Association.

Personal: Bennett lives in Blacksburg and enjoys playing golf and basketball, as well as hiking and skiing, in his spare time.

SPORTS NUTRITION

Eating healthy and making food functional for athletic performance are important aspects of a Virginia Tech student-athlete's life, and that's why the athletics department implemented the sports nutrition program in July of 2002. Jennie Zabinsky is the department's director of sports nutrition. She is assisted by Kelly Masteller, the sports nutrition coordinator, and Becky Lindberg, a graduate assistant.

The sports nutrition program offers a wide variety of services that aim to enhance the performance of each student-athlete. Services include individual assessments, team talks, body composition analysis using the Bod Pod, grocery store tours, supplement management and education, disordered eating counseling, travel meal arrangements, and football training table menu planning and management. Zabinsky works closely with coaches, team physicians, athletic trainers, strength coaches and the sport psychologist to address any performance concerns. She directs the nutrition and performance committee that meets monthly to discuss student-athletes of concern.

The sports nutrition staff manages two facilities, the Nutrition Oasis and Fueling Station, that provide athletes fuel in between workouts, classes and meals. Each facility provides recovery beverages, Gatorade products, smoothies, and a variety of high performance snack options as well as nutrition education resources.

JENNIE ZABINSKY, MAEd, RD

SPORTS NUTRITIONIST

Responsibilities: Zabinsky is responsible for all nutrition and performance related concerns for varsity student-athletes including individual counseling, team talks, body composition analysis using the Bod Pod, recovery nutrition plans, grocery store tours, training table menu planning, travel meal arrangements, managing the Nutrition Oasis and Fueling Stations, and supplement education.

Joined VT Staff: 2011; fifth year.

At Virginia Tech: Zabinsky worked as the sports nutrition graduate assistant under former director Amy Freel, before being hired as director. She directs the nutrition and performance committee.

Education: Roanoke College, 2005 (B.A., in sociology) while competing in basketball for four years; Virginia Tech, 2009 (B.S., in human nutrition, foods and exercise: dietetics option); Virginia Tech, 2010 (dietetic internship); Virginia Tech, 2013 (master of arts in education).

Of Note: Zabinsky is in her fifth year as director. She is a member of the Collegiate and Professional Sports Dietitians Association (CPSDA) and Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics.

Family: A native of Centerville, Va., Zabinsky and her husband Sam live in Christiansburg. The couple welcomed twin boys, Kyle Eli and Kaleb James, into the world on May 20, 2015.

SPORTS MEDICINE

PROVIDING THE HOKIES WITH EXPERIENCED, PROFESSIONAL CARE

The Sports Medicine Department at Virginia Tech is constantly evolving to incorporate new ideas utilizing state-of-the-art resources for the betterment of all Hokie student-athletes. Under the leadership of Associate Athletics Director for Sports Medicine Mike Goforth, the department is constantly improving and developing new strategies to provide the most current and comprehensive care.

The team of certified athletic trainers, orthopaedic surgeons, Board Certified primary care physicians, chiropractors, physical therapists, acupuncturists, brace consultants, sport psychologists, nutritionists, massage therapists and orthotists are available on site to manage the health care needs of Tech athletes. The staff continually looks for ways to enhance the services provided for its athletes as evidenced by its participation in local and national projects pertaining to related topics such as concussion management, hypertension, platelet rich plasma, prevention of antibiotic resistant types of staph infection (MRSA), high ankle sprains and collegiate health care management strategies. Research is considered instrumental to the sports medicine department. The department has participated in several projects with the College of Engineering and the School of Education.

Following the 10th full year in the 4,300-square-foot Eddie Ferrell Memorial Training Room, the space was expanded in 2013 to create a facility that unites the training and medical staffs in a centralized area to care for the needs of all Virginia Tech student-athletes.

The new space converted the current training room into a functional rehabilitation space for preventative and post-injury care, adding doctors' offices adjacent to a new treatment area. There is top-of-the-line equipment and a unique style of architecture, developed by Glenn Reynolds, AIA and Larry Perry as the consulting engineer.

Tech now has more than 10,000 square feet dedicated to sports medicine, placing it in the top five percent nationally. The addition of the rehabilitation area makes Tech the first school to install the new Pavi Gym Customized flooring and X-Lab Fitness Rack, while also adding numerous pieces of equipment to address strength, flexibility, proprioception and cardiovascular endurance. This space is directly joined with the new training area that is home to dozens of training tables, two cold tubs, whirlpools, an underwater treadmill and a Biodex System 3.

The training room now has offices for the staff, as well as a fully functional physician suite equipped with four state-of-the-art exam rooms, X-ray, diagnostic ultrasound and fluroscan equipment.

In addition, a training room has been constructed in Rector Field House to serve the football team when it practices indoors, and the Gordon Family Mobile Sports Medicine Unit is a portable training room that can be transported to various venues.

Athletes have many options to help prevent or protect them from injuries. The sports medicine staff takes great pride in treating athletes year-round. Special attention is paid to offseason activity. The staff will analyze past injury data from each participant and construct a preventative program that is followed over a nine-week period between the end of the season and the beginning of spring practice. This same procedure is followed during the summer.

A vital part of student-athlete medical services is access to the LewisGale Hospital at Montgomery's SWVA Center for Orthopaedics and various specialty services offered through HCA Southwest Virginia and its affiliated hospitals.

"We are privileged to have access to the finest physicians and services that HCA has at its disposal," Goforth said. "It is comforting knowing that our local hospital has the best care available in this region of the country for our student-athletes."

If physical therapy is needed, student-athletes can be seen in the Ferrell Training Room by one of several physical therapists who play a large role in the overall program developed to return an injured athlete to 100 percent. Team chiropractor, Dr. Greg Tilley, provides Tech athletes with specialized treatment for spine-related conditions and plays a huge role in performance enhancement through various chiropractic techniques.

"As certified athletic trainers, for us to have the resources we have is a tremendous asset," Goforth said. "The knowledge and skills that they bring are invaluable."

MIKE GOFORTH

ASSOCIATE ATHLETICS DIRECTOR FOR SPORTS MEDICINE

Responsibilities: As associate athletics director for sports medicine, Goforth oversees healthcare needs of all student-athletes and organizes all trainers and doctors while supervising all other services Tech offers.

Joined VT Staff: 1998; 17th year.

Prior to Virginia Tech: Goforth came to Tech from the Hamilton Medical Center/Bradley Wellness Center in Dalton, Georgia, where he was the director of wellness and sports medicine. He has an extensive background in sports medicine, working at East Tennessee State University, William Fleming High School, Tusculum College, Greene County Sports Medicine/Industrial Cooperative and Pioneer Sports Medicine/Physical Therapy Clinic. He also has numerous opportunities to consult on program development throughout the country.

Education: East Tennessee State University, 1991, physical education; Virginia Tech, 1995, master's in sport management.

Of Note: Goforth was named Athletic Trainer of the Year for District 3 by the National Athletic Trainers' Association in 2014.

Family: Goforth and his wife, Tracy, a teacher at Blacksburg Middle School, have two sons – Ethan and Luke.

Team orthopaedic surgeons Dr. Tony McPherron, Dr. Bart Eastwood and Dr. James Farmer bring a wealth of experience and skill to assist when athletes need orthopaedic consultation for certain types of sports-related injuries. The surgeons bring a unique skill set and have an excellent bedside manner that ensures that athletes and parents alike are comfortable and confident whenever surgery may be indicated.

Over the past 16 years, Tech has developed the reputation for producing top-level certified athletic trainers. Graduates are now employed in positions across the country at various levels of the profession.

VIRGINIA TECH LEADING THE WAY IN HEAD IMPACT RESEARCH

In 2003, Virginia Tech was the first school to use the HIT System to monitor head impacts experienced by its football players. The HIT System consists of a sensor array that integrates into existing football helmets. This device measures head acceleration for every impact that players experience during each game and practice that they participate in. After each impact is recorded, data is sent to a computer on the sideline for real-time feedback.

While researchers have used the HIT System to better understand the biomechanics of concussion and head impact exposure in football, the athletic training and medical staff have used the system as another tool improve concussion identification in athletes. Virginia Tech is participating in a new, landmark $30 million national effort sponsored by the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the U.S. Department of Defense to combat concussions among college athletes and active service military personnel.

The initiative funds the most comprehensive study of concussion and head impact exposure ever conducted. It will enroll an estimated 25,000 male and female NCAA student-athletes during a three-year study period. Virginia Tech will focus on athletes participating in various sports, including football, women's soccer, men's soccer, and women's lacrosse.

The 2015 football season will be the 13th year that Virginia Tech has collected head impact data from its players. To date, well over 200,000 head impacts have been collected and analyzed. The head acceleration data collected at Virginia Tech using the HIT System has allowed researchers to quantify the head impact exposure that collegiate football players experience.

In addition, these data have produced valuable insight to the head accelerations associated with concussion.

Beginning in 2013, the sports medicine staff started a new study looking at different biomarker levels found in the blood of its athletes. These levels are measured before and after the season, as well as in the unlikely event of a concussion being diagnosed. Researchers are looking for correlations between the force each of these athletes sustain over the course of a season (through using the HIT System) and the changes they find in the levels of these specific biomarkers.

Knowing the location, severity, and frequency of head impacts experienced during a season of collegiate football, Virginia Tech researchers developed the STAR, an acronym for the Summation of Tests for the Analysis of Risk, Evaluation System. This system evaluates the ability of football helmets to reduce the probability of concussion, and disseminates the results to the public so that consumers can make informed decisions when purchasing helmets.

As part of his research, biomedical engineering professor Stefan Duma tests football helmets to reduce the risk of concussions to players.

The STAR Evaluation System involves a series of 20 drop tests consisting of different impact locations and energies that represents impacts experienced by collegiate football players. Each drop test is weighted based on how often a player experiences that impact scenario throughout a season of play. For each test, risk of concussion is determined based on the head acceleration produced by each helmet.

An overall predicted incidence of concussion is calculated for each helmet for the given impact exposure to assess helmet performance. This is the first tool to assess helmet performance and make the results available to the public, allowing consumers to make informed decisions when purchasing a new helmet. Led by Dr. Stefan Duma, this work has resulted in a paradigm shift in the way consumers purchase helmets, as well as how helmets are designed. Duma's work and data has been featured nationally on ESPN and NBC, as well as in the New York Times and other nationally recognized media outlets.

2014 SEASON IN REVIEW

HOKIES EXTEND STREAK OF WINNING SEASONS TOPPED BY BOWL GAMES

Virginia Tech got its 2014 season started on a positive note, getting 251 yards passing from quarterback Michael Brewer and 106 yards rushing from tailback Shai McKenzie in a 34-9 victory over William & Mary to open the 50th season of football in Lane Stadium.

The Hokies won their home opener for the 25th time in Frank Beamer's 28 seasons.

Brewer completed 23 of 30 passes for 251 yards, with two touchdowns to lead Tech. He completed passes to nine different receivers, including touchdown passes of 13 yards to Isaiah Ford and 8 yards to Bucky Hodges – a pair of freshmen.

Freshman kicker Joey Slye kicked field goals of 20 and 27 yards for the Hokies. Freshmen scored all but six points for the Hokies.

Shai McKenzie was named the ACC Rookie of the Week after rushing for 106 yards on just nine carries (11.8 yards per carry) with a 39-yard touchdown and 12 broken tackles in the win.

A week later, Donovan Riley's 63-yard interception return for a touchdown with 46 seconds left sealed one of the biggest wins in school history, as Virginia Tech stunned No. 8 Ohio State 35-21 in front of 107,517 fans at Ohio Stadium – the largest crowd ever to watch a game at Ohio State.

The Buckeyes saw their 64-game home winning streak against non-conference competition come to an end. Ohio State had not lost a home game to an unranked non-conference opponent since 1982.

At No. 8, Ohio State marked the highest-ranked opponent that the Hokies have beaten on the road. Tech had beaten a No. 9-ranked team on the road or at neutral sites on three occasions, with the most recent win coming in 2004 over then-No. 9 Miami.

Senior Kyshoen Jarrett made two second-half interceptions, had five tackles and one pass breakup, earning him the FWAA/Bronko Nagurski National Defensive Player of the Week award.

Tech wasn't able to build on the momentum of the Ohio State win as East Carolina quarterback Shane Carden threw three touchdown passes and scored the game-winning touchdown on a 1-yard run with 16 seconds left to lift the Pirates past No. 17 Virginia Tech 28-21 at Lane Stadium the following week.

The Hokies then dropped their ACC opener as Georgia Tech kicker Harrison Butker hit a 24-yard field goal on the final play of the game to lift the Yellow Jackets past Virginia Tech 27-24 at Lane Stadium a week later.

Looking to bounce back, Marshawn Williams rushed for 119 yards and Virginia Tech's offense ran for a season-high 308 yards, as the Hokies knocked off Western Michigan 35-17 in a Homecoming game at Lane Stadium on Sept. 27. The Hokies jumped out of the blocks early, scoring 8 seconds into the game when backup linebacker Andrew Motuapuaka returned a fumble by Western Michigan's Donald Celiscar on the opening kickoff 11 yards for a touchdown.

In search of back-to-back wins, the Hokies traveled to Chapel Hill, North Carolina, to face North Carolina on Oct. 4. Brewer threw a touchdown pass, Williams scored on a touchdown run and Virginia Tech's defense held North Carolina's offense at bay, as the Hokies downed the Tar Heels 34-17 in an ACC game played at Kenan Stadium.

The big play of the first half – and the game – came with roughly a minute left. The Tar Heels tried to mount a drive, getting to their own 45. But Tech's Kendall Fuller intercepted a Mitch Trubisky pass and returned it 47 yards for a touchdown to give the Hokies a 24-3 lead.

Tech couldn't make it three in a row as the Hokies fell 21-16 to the Pittsburgh Panthers in an ACC game Thursday night at Heinz Field. Tech cut into the lead when Brewer threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Cam Phillips with 4:52 left that made it 21-16, but the Hokies couldn't score late as they lost their fourth straight game at the venue.

The losing streak reached two a week later when Miami tailback Duke Johnson ran for 249 yards and scored two touchdowns, and the Hurricanes used three second-quarter touchdowns to take control of the game in downing the Hokies 30-6 in an ACC contest played Thursday night at a sold-out Lane Stadium.

The Hokies' lone score came with 1:30 left in the game. On fourth-and-10 from the Miami 14, backup quarterback Mark Leal – inserted for the final series – threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Ford.

The following week, Brewer threw for 345 yards, but Boston College quarterback Tyler Murphy made a big play in the final moments, and the Eagles outlasted the Hokies 33-31 in an ACC game at Lane Stadium.

Virginia Tech got back to its winning ways, rallying from a 16-7 deficit in the second half to knock off No. 19 Duke 17-16 in an ACC game played at Wallace-Wade Stadium. Tech's defense held Duke to 326 yards. The Hokies finished with four sacks of Anthony Boone, who completed just 18-of-40 for 181 yards, with two interceptions.

After a tough 6-3 double overtime loss to Wake Forest on the road, the Hokies returned home for their final game needing a win to extend their bowl streak to 22 seasons. All that was standing in their way was in-state rival Virginia.

Brewer's touchdown pass to Hodges with less than two minutes left helped the Hokies continue their recent mastery over Virginia, as they knocked off the Cavaliers 24-20 in the Commonwealth Clash held on a Friday night at Lane Stadium. The win extended Tech's winning streak over the Cavaliers to 11 straight in the series.

Fuller was the lone Hokie to earn first-team All-ACC honors. Dadi Nicolas and Corey Marshall were second-team selections while several others made the third team. Fuller was also named an All-American by both the Walter Camp Football Foundation and the Associated Press.

In a bowl once again, the Hokies prepared hard and it showed. J.C. Coleman set a new Virginia Tech bowl record for rushing yards and Slye booted four field goals as the Hokies wrapped up the 2014 season with a 33-17 win over the University of Cincinnati to claim the Military Bowl presented by Northrup Grumman at Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium in Annapolis, Maryland. The win gave the Hokies their seventh win of the season and assured them of their 22nd straight winning season.

Coleman was named MVP after running for 157 yards and a touchdown on 25 carries. The 157 yards set a new Tech bowl record for yards, surpassing Kevin Jones and Darren Evans, who each ran for 153 yards in a game.

2014 MILITARY BOWL

J.C. Coleman set a new Virginia Tech bowl record for rushing yards and Joey Slye booted four field goals as the Virginia Tech football squad wrapped up the 2014 season with a 33-17 win over the University of Cincinnati to claim the Military Bowl at Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium. The win gave the Hokies their seventh win of the season and assured them of their 22nd straight winning season.

Cincinnati got off to a hot start offensively, moving up and down the field, but could only convert its 300 yards of first-half offense into 10 points. Leading 13-10, the Hokies got the ball first in the second half and went right down the field as Michael Brewer hit tight end Ryan Malleck from 1-yard out to give Tech a 20-10 lead.

With the Bearcats on the move, Tech's defense swung the momentum to its side for good as linebacker Deon Clarke came blitzing up the middle to sack Gunnar Kiel. The ball popped loose and was scooped up by defensive tackle Nigel Williams. Williams rumbled 26 yards, but fumbled the ball and freshman Greg Stroman picked it up, returning it to the goal line before being driven into the end zone for a wild score.

Coleman was named MVP after running for 157 yards and a touchdown on 25 carries. The 157 yards set a new Tech bowl record for yards, surpassing Kevin Jones and Darren Evans, who each ran for 153 yards in a game.

Tech's defense allowed 489 yards of UC offense, but intercepted Kiel twice and clamped down in big situations to thwart drives.

Slye's four field goals tied the school record for made field goals in a bowl game. Justin Meyer hit four field goals in the 2012 Sugar Bowl against Michigan.

HOKIE ALL-AMERICANS

VIRGINIA TECH'S UNANIMOUS ALL-AMERICA SELECTIONS

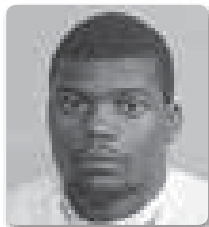

JIM PYNE
Center • 1993

In 1993, Jim Pyne achieved something even Bruce Smith failed to do – earn unanimous All-America honors. Pyne helped pave the way for an offensive unit that set school season marks for total offense and scoring in 1993.

The Hokies averaged 444.1 yards and 36.4 points per game and finished 14th nationally in total offense, 11th in scoring offense and 10th in rushing.

Pyne was named first-team All-America by the AP, UPI, Walter Camp, the Football Writers Association and the Football Coaches Association (Kodak). He was one of the 12 semifinalists for the Lombardi Award, which goes to the nation's top lineman.

In four seasons at Tech, Pyne played more than 2,700 snaps and allowed just one quarterback sack. He started 35 consecutive games and 41 of the 42 games in which he played.

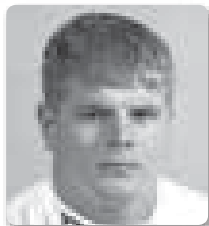

COREY MOORE
Def. End • 1998, 1999 (Unanimous)

Following an outstanding senior season in 1999, Corey Moore was voted first-team on all six major All-America teams to become the Hokies' second unanimous All-American. He was selected first-team by the AP, the Football Writers Association, the Football Coaches Association, Walter Camp, The Sporting News and Football News.

Moore posted a BIG EAST record 17 sacks during the '99 season to go with 11 other TFLs and 60 total tackles.

He also earned All-America honors in 1998 when he led the BIG EAST with 13.5 sacks. He gained first-team All-America recognition from the Football Coaches Association. Moore was a second-team pick by the AP and The Sporting News and a third-team choice of Football News.

JAKE GROVE
Center • 2002, 2003 (Unanimous)

Jake Grove became the third unanimous All-American in Tech football history when he was named to the first team of all five recognized All-America squads: the FWAA, the AFCA, The Sporting News, the Walter Camp Football Foundation and the AP. He was a fourth-team All-American in 2002 (Sporting News).

As a senior, he was named first-team All-BIG EAST and was presented the Rimington Trophy in Lincoln, Neb., honoring the nation's top collegiate center.

In 13 regular season games, Grove graded out at 91.8 percent on over 700 offensive plays and led the offensive line in knockdowns with 48.

He went on to be drafted in the second round by the Oakland Raiders in the 2004 NFL Draft as the first center taken.

JIMMY WILLIAMS
Defensive Back • 2005

Jimmy Williams became Tech's fourth unanimous All-American in football history when he was named to the first team of all five recognized All-America squads: the Football Writers Association of America, the American Football Coaches Association, The Sporting News, the Walter Camp Football Foundation and the AP.

As a senior, he was named first-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference and was one of three finalists for the Jim Thorpe award, honoring the nation's top collegiate defensive back.

In 13 games, he recorded 44 tackles, including two for loss and a sack, along with 14 quarterback hurries, five pass break ups and an interception.

He went on to be drafted in the second round by the Atlanta Falcons in the 2006 NFL Draft.

THE HOKIES' OTHER FIRST-TEAM SELECTIONS

CARROLL DALE
E • 1959

After earning second-team Associated Press All-America honors as a junior in 1958, Carroll Dale went on to become the first Virginia Tech football player to earn first-team All-America honors following the 1959 season. Dale was named to the Football Writers Association (LOOK Magazine) and Newspaper Enterprise Association first teams as a senior and was once again a second-team choice by the AP. He led Tech in receiving four straight years and finished the '59 season with 17 receptions for 408 yards and six touchdowns.

BOB SCHWEICKERT
QB • 1963, 1964

One of the finest triple-threat quarterbacks in the history of the Southern Conference, Bob Schweickert was named to the LOOK All-America team picked by the Football Writers Association following the 1964 season. Schweickert fought off injuries during the '64 season to rush for 576 yards and nine touchdowns and pass for 833 yards and nine more TDs. He also handled the punting duties with a 37.7-yard average. As a junior in 1963, Schweickert earned third-team All-America honors from The Associated Press.

FRANK LORIA
S • 1966, 1967 (Consensus)

Safety Frank Loria was the first Tech football player to gain first-team All-America honors in back-to-back seasons and became the Hokies' first consensus All-America pick in 1967. As a junior in 1966, Loria helped Tech to the Liberty Bowl, contributing three interceptions and returning three punts for touchdowns. He was named to first-team A-A squads picked by The Associated Press and the Football Writers Association and was a second-team selection by the Helms Athletic Foundation. Loria was named to six major All-America squads following the 1967 season. He finished the year with three interceptions and 420 yards on punt returns, including a 95-yard return for a TD against Miami. His first-team honors came from the AP, United Press International, NEA, the Football Coaches Association, the Football Writers Association and the Walter Camp Foundation.

MIKE WIDGER
LB • 1968

Mike Widger capped an incredible junior season by earning first-team All-America honors from The Associated Press and the Football Writers Association. Widger compiled a record 825 tackling points and was among the national leaders in pass interceptions (7) and return yardage (203 yards). He returned two of his interceptions for touchdowns and scored another TD after pulling the football loose from a Kansas State running back and racing 46 yards to the end zone.

BRUCE SMITH
DT • 1983, 1984 (Consensus)

Bruce Smith was named to first-team All-America squads picked by the Football Coaches Association and the Newspaper Enterprise Association after registering an incredible 22 quarterback sacks as a junior in 1983. Smith, who also was named to The Associated Press second team that year, finished with a total of 55 tackles, 31 of which were behind the line of scrimmage. As a senior in 1984, Smith accumulated 16 sacks and nine other tackles behind the line. He finished the year with 69 total tackles and was a consensus All-America pick, making first teams selected by the AP, the Football Writers of America, Kodak and Walter Camp.

EUGENE CHUNG OT • 1991

When Eugene Chung was named to the Football Writers Association All-America team following his senior season, he became the first Tech offensive lineman to win first-team All-America honors. Chung started every game at tackle for the Hokies in 1991, allowing just one quarterback sack in 730 plays. The Washington Gridiron Club honored Chung as the National Lineman of the Year.

CORNELL BROWN DE • 1995 (Consensus), 1996

Cornell Brown became the first Virginia Tech football player to gain consensus All-America honors as a junior when he was named to five first teams in 1995. Brown was a first-team A-A pick by AP, UPI, the Football Writers Association, The Sporting News and Football News. He finished the year with 103 total tackles, including a BIG EAST-leading 14 sacks. He was selected National Defensive Player of the Year by Football News and was one of five finalists for the Defensive Player of the Year. In 1996, Brown missed three games, but still earned first-team honors from Walter Camp and second-team recognition from AP. He posted eight sacks, five other tackles behind the line, 19 quarterback hurries and 58 total tackles during the '96 season.

BILLY CONATY C • 1996

Considered one of the top offensive linemen in school history, Billy Conaty saw action on 98 percent of Virginia Tech's offensive plays in 1996 and went on to earn first-team All-America honors from The Sporting News. Conaty helped the Hokies to a 10-2 record and a trip to the Orange Bowl that season, grading a winning percentage in 10 of the 12 games and leading the squad with 65 knockdown blocks. He finished his career by setting an all-time school record for starts and consecutive starts with 48.

MICHAEL VICK QB • 1999

In a spectacular freshman season that saw him lead Virginia Tech to its first ever 11-0 regular season and its first appearance in the national championship game, Michael Vick became the first Tech freshman football player to earn first-team All-America honors. Vick was named first-team by The Sporting News. He also was a second-team pick by The Associated Press. The redshirt freshman quarterback was third in the voting for the 1999 Heisman Trophy and second in the voting for the AP Player of the Year. Vick led Division I-A in passing efficiency (180.37), setting an NCAA record for a freshman in the process. He completed 59.2 percent of his passes for 1,840 yards and 12 touchdowns. He also contributed 585 yards and eight TDs rushing.

ANDRÉ DAVIS PR • 2000

André Davis finished the 2000 season second in the Division I-A ranks in punt returns and earned first-team All-America honors on the American Football Coaches Association team as a return specialist. Davis returned 18 punts for 396 yards for a school-record average of 22 yards per return. He tied another school season mark when he returned three punts for touchdowns. His 87-yard TD return against East Carolina was the second-longest in school history.

KEVIN JONES RB • 2003 (Consensus)

One of the highest-rated recruits ever to sign with Virginia Tech, Kevin Jones rushed for a school-record 1,647 yards, including 241 yards against Pittsburgh, on 281 attempts with 21 touchdowns as a junior in '03. He went on to earn first-team All-America honors from The Sporting News, The Walter Camp Football Foundation, FWAA and AFCA. He was named to the second team by AP.

DARRYL TAPP DE • 2005

Considered one of the best defensive ends in school history, Darryl Tapp capped an incredible career, earning first-team All-America honors by AFCA and second-team honors by The Associated Press. During his senior season, Tapp, who started all 13 games, recorded team-bests for sacks, tackles for loss and forced fumbles. He recorded 10 sacks, 14.5 tackles for loss and three forced fumbles. Tapp was also fifth on the team in tackles. He won the Dudley Award, given to the state's top player, and was a Lott Trophy finalist.

XAVIER ADIBI LB • 2007

Xavier Adibi teamed with fellow linebacker Vince Hall throughout his career to form what was arguably the best linebacking duo in school history. Though he enjoyed a breakout season as a junior, Adibi put up eye-popping numbers as a senior on his way to first-team All-America honors from the American Football Coaches Association. He led the team with 115 tackles, including 12 tackles for loss, while chipping in three sacks and two interceptions – one of which he returned for a touchdown. In addition to being named first-team All-ACC, Adibi was also awarded a spot on The Associated Press All-America third team.

BRANDON FLOWERS CB • 2007

Despite leaving a year early for the NFL, cornerback Brandon Flowers became only the seventh Hokie to be named a two-time All-American when he was placed on the American Football Coaches Association first team after his junior season. He was also named second team by both The Associated Press and the Walter Camp Football Foundation. Flowers was a third-team AP honoree as a sophomore. In 2007, he placed third on the team with 86 tackles from his secondary spot, adding eight tackles for loss in the process. After leading the ACC in 2006 in passes broken up and passes defended, opponents shied away from him as a junior, but he still managed nine breakups, 14 passes defended and a career-high five interceptions.

VICTOR "MACHO" HARRIS CB • 2008

One of the nation's top cornerbacks, Victor Harris earned first-team All-America honors from Sporting News and was a second-team pick by The Associated Press after a stellar senior season. Harris considered entering the NFL Draft following his junior year, but decided to return, earning his degree along with A-A honors. He tied for 11th nationally in interceptions with six, two of which he returned for touchdowns. A two-time first-team All-ACC selection, he finished fourth in the league in interceptions and passes defended, and third in punt returns. His 15 career interceptions rank third all-time at Tech, while his four career TDs on picks are an all-time record for a Hokie.

JAYRON HOSLEY CB • 2010

Jayron Hosley tied a 43-year old Virginia Tech season record for interceptions on the way to being selected first-team on the Walter Camp All-America squad. Hosley led the nation in interceptions with nine and tied for third in most passes defended with 17. The sophomore cornerback was also a second-team A-A pick by The Associated Press and earned the National Defensive Back Trophy from the College Football Performance Awards. Hosley was named first team All-ACC after topping the league in both interceptions and passes defended. He also ranked second among ACC players in punt returns.

NATIONAL HONORS

JAKE GROVE WON THE RIMINGTON TROPHY IN 2003

Jake Grove arrived on the Virginia Tech campus as a lightly recruited guard from Forest, Va. He left as a unanimous All-American, winner of the Rimington Trophy as the nation's top center and a second-round draft pick of the Oakland Raiders.

Heading into his junior season, Grove made the switch over to the center position and became a natural fit. By the time he headed into his final season, he was gaining headlines and recognition for his play. He was rewarded by being named to all five major All-America first teams. He was awarded the Dave Rimington Trophy, given to the nation's top collegiate center.

COREY MOORE EARNED THE LOMBARDI AND NAGURSKI AWARDS IN 1999

In three years on campus, Corey Moore amassed 35 sacks for losses, totaling 292 yards. He left Tech as the most decorated player ever to put on the Hokie uniform. He won the 1999 Bronko Nagurski Award as college football's Defensive Player of the Year. Moore also won the 1999 Lombardi Award as college football's lineman of the year. He became Tech's second-ever unanimous All-American, joining Jim Pyne. Moore won the Dudley Award as the top college player in Virginia, the BIG EAST Defensive Player of the Year award and was selected as Football News' Defensive Player of the Year.

MICHAEL VICK WON AN ESPY AS THE NATIONAL PLAYER OF THE YEAR IN 1999

When Michael Vick took to the field against James Madison on Sept. 4, 1999, little did people in attendance or watching on television realize they would be witnessing the beginning of the most exciting two years in Virginia Tech football history.

In 1999, Vick led the Hokies to a perfect 11-0 regular season and a berth in the national championship game, both firsts in school history. The Hokies lost that game to Florida State, but all the talk was about the performance the redshirt freshman put on in that game.

For his accomplishments that year, he was awarded an ESPY by ESPN, given to the nation's top college football player. Vick was awarded the trophy at the ESPY ceremonies on Feb. 14, 2000, in Las Vegas as he mingled with some of sports' all-time greats.

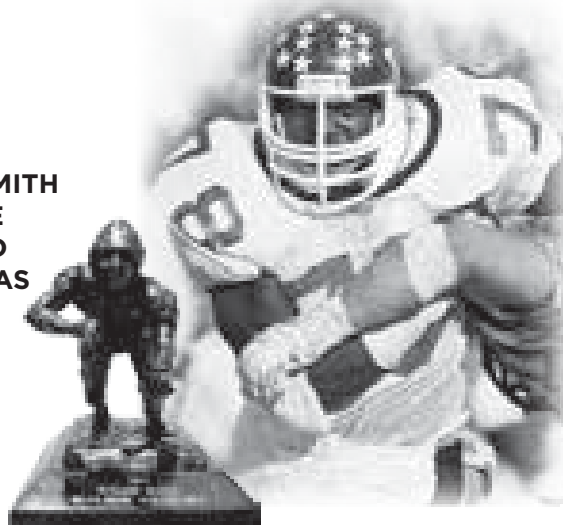

BRUCE SMITH WON THE OUTLAND TROPHY AS THE TOP LINEMAN IN 1984

Bruce Smith, "The Sack Man" of Virginia Tech football, capped his sensational college career in 1984 by winning the Outland Trophy as America's top lineman.

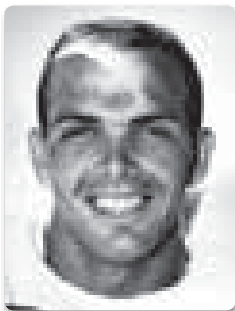

The big announcement was made by Wilt Browning at a press luncheon in Tech's Bowman Room. Browning, a sports columnist of The Greensboro Daily News and a committee member of the Football Writers' Association of America, began by reading a long list of former Outland Trophy winners. He then said, "Add to that list today, the 1984 winner – Bruce Smith of Virginia Tech."

"The one thing though, that stuck in my mind was the statistic on his tackles for losses," Browning said. "In four years at Virginia Tech, he accounted for losses totaling more than five times the length of a football field (504 yards). That's amazing."

Smith was a consensus All-American and was the first Virginian to win one of the national awards (including the Heisman and the Lombardi).

RETIRED NUMBERS & JERSEYS

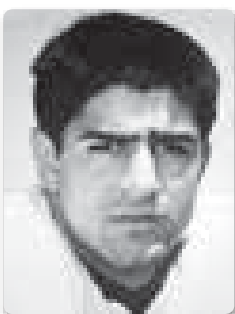

84 CARROLL DALE

A native of Wise, Va., Carroll Dale entered Virginia Tech in 1956 as an offensive and defensive end. After seeing varsity action as a reserve in the first game of the '56 season, Dale went on to start the remaining 39 games of his college career and became Tech's first bona fide All-American. As a junior in 1958, he was named the Southern Conference Player of the Year. In 1959, Dale was captain of the Tech team and earned first-team A-A honors. Dale led the Hokies in pass receiving each of his four seasons and finished his Tech career with 67 catches for 1,195 yards and 15 touchdowns. He went on to a pro football career that lasted more than a decade and was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1987. His Tech jersey was the first to be retired.

78 BRUCE SMITH

Known as "The Sack Man" of Virginia Tech football, Bruce Smith capped his sensational college career in 1984. As a Tech player, Smith had a career total of 71 tackles behind the line of scrimmage for losses totaling 504 yards. Smith had 46 career quarterback sacks, including 22 during his junior season in 1983 when he was named first-team All-America. In 1984, the Norfolk, Va., native won the Outland Trophy as America's top lineman and was a consensus All-American. Smith was the No. 1 player picked in the 1985 National Football League draft. During his pro career, he established himself as one of the greatest defensive players ever to play the game. He ended his career in 2003 as the NFL's all-time sack leader with 200.

10 FRANK LORIA

Despite his 5-9, 175-pound frame, Frank Loria was one of the most tenacious football players ever to play for Virginia Tech. Loria, who started every game at safety from 1965-67, rapidly established himself as one of Tech's all-time greats. During his junior year, he earned first-team All-American honors. As a senior in 1967, Loria became Tech's first consensus All-American, making seven first-team All-American squads. He finished his Tech career with seven interceptions and a number of punt return records. He went on to coach at Marshall. In 1970, at age 23, he died in an airplane tragedy that claimed the lives of the Marshall football team and staff. He was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1999. His number was retired prior to the 1971 season.

73 JIM PYNE

Center Jim Pyne became Virginia Tech's first unanimous All-American when he made all five major teams that were selected in 1993. In addition to All-America honors, Pyne was named winner of the Dudley Award as Virginia's Player of the Year. During his four seasons at Tech, he established himself as one of the Hokies' top linemen of all time, leading the charge for the 1993 team that rewrote the school record books for scoring and total offense. Pyne started 35 consecutive games and 41 of the 42 Tech games in which he played. He allowed just one quarterback sack by the man he was assigned to block during more than 2,700 career snaps. Pyne spent nine seasons as an NFL lineman before becoming an assistant coach in the pro ranks.

BEAMER AMONG FIVE WHO HAVE HAD JERSEYS RETIRED

In 2002, the Virginia Tech Athletics Department developed a new policy on retiring football jerseys. This special honor is bestowed to acknowledge an individual who has won an established national award in their sport, while allowing the number to continue to be worn by others. Tech no longer retires numbers. That year, three jerseys were retired in ceremonies. The jerseys of Frank Beamer, Cornell Brown and Michael Vick were the first to be honored. In 2006, Jake Grove had the same honor bestowed upon him. Corey Moore's jersey has been retired since 2009.

Frank Beamer
Sept. 12, 2002
Winner of eight national coach of the year awards following Tech's 1999 season.

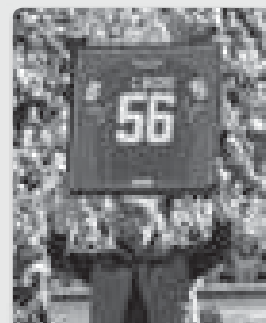

Michael Vick
Sept. 1, 2002
Won 2000 ESPY as College Football's Performer of the Year.

Cornell Brown
Nov. 20, 2002
Named 1995 National Defensive Player of the Year by Football News in 1995.

Jake Grove
Sept. 23, 2006
Winner of the 2003 Rimington Trophy, given to the nation's top collegiate center.

Corey Moore
Oct. 23, 2010
Winner of the 1999 Lombardi and Bronko Nagurski Awards

BEAMERBALL

- During the Frank Beamer era at Tech, putting points on the scoreboard has always been a team effort – the offense, the defense and the special teams. It's called BeamerBall, and what sets it apart are the contributions of the defense and special teams.
- During Beamer's time at Tech, a player at every position on the defensive unit has produced at least one touchdown, and 39 different players have scored touchdowns while playing on Tech's special teams. Altogether, the defense and special teams have combined for 139 TDs since Beamer arrived in 1987, including 122 in Tech's past 271 games.
- Under Beamer, Tech's defense has scored 86 TDs, with 57 coming on pass interceptions, 27 on fumble returns and two on fumble recoveries. The special teams have added 53 TDs, including 19 on blocked punts, 19 on punt returns, nine on kickoff returns, four on blocked field goals and one on a fumble recovery.
- Fittingly, the trend started in Beamer's first game as Tech's head coach when true freshman Jon Jeffries returned a kickoff 92 yards for a touchdown against Clemson. It was the Hokies' first TD under Beamer, and it was the first of many scored by the special teams.
- Under Beamer, 90 different players on defense and special teams have scored TDs. Eddie Royal, Xavier Adibi, Jason Lallis, Ike Charlton and Ricky Hall each had three scores; André Davis had four; Victor Harris had five, and DeAngelo Hall had seven. Twenty-four players scored twice.
- Since the start of the 1993 season, Tech is 82-15 in games it scores at least one TD on defense or special teams. Tech is 86-25 under Beamer when scoring a non-offensive touchdown.

BEAMERBALL II

- Tech's tradition for blocking kicks is another part of BeamerBall. It was carried to new heights in 1998 with 10 blocks during the regular season and two more in the Hokies' Music City Bowl game against Alabama.
- Tech now has 134 blocks in Frank Beamer's 348 games as the head coach. The Hokies have blocked 66 punts (19 returned or recovered for TDs), 40 field goals and 28 extra points.

Under Frank Beamer, the Hokies have scored 139 non-offensive touchdowns.

- The most prolific kick blockers under Beamer have been defensive lineman Bernard Basham (7 kicks) and safety Keion Carpenter (6 kicks). Basham blocked three field goals and four PATs, while Carpenter blocked six punts.
- Tech blocked more kicks in the 1990s than any other Division I-A team. The Hokies blocked 63 kicks during the decade – 31 punts, 18 PATs and 14 FGs. Tech had 46 blocks in the last decade.
- During the Beamer era, Tech has blocked two kicks in a game 23 times, winning 17 of those games. Tech blocked two kicks against four different teams in 1998.

Tech has blocked 134 total kicks under head coach Frank Beamer.

TECH'S BOWL HISTORY

NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP APPEARANCE HIGHLIGHTS BOWL STREAK FOR THE HOKIES

The Virginia Tech bowl tradition dates back to 1947 when the Hokies first appeared in the Sun Bowl. In the 67 years since, well over one million fans have passed through the turnstiles to witness Tech compete in 27 bowl games in 13 different stadiums across seven states. The closest distance Tech has traveled for a bowl game was to Annapolis, Md., which is 314 miles from Lane Stadium, while in 2003, the Hokies traveled to San Francisco for their farthest game, 2,440 miles away.

No matter the mileage, members of the Hokie Nation have always shown up in droves to show their support. Tech's invitation to the Military Bowl in Annapolis, Md., extended its bowl appearance streak to 22 consecutive years, the second-longest active streak in the country.

1947 SUN BOWL

The first bowl bid that Tech received followed the 1946 season, when the Hokies played Cincinnati in the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas. An early snow covered Blacksburg that year and threatened to end all football practices. Bulldozers and snowplows were used to clear a practice area on the Drillfield and the Hokies got in their bowl preparations. The Tech team encountered more snowy weather when it reached El Paso. The Cincinnati team handled the weather and the Hokies, winning 18-6.

1966 LIBERTY BOWL

It was not until 1966 that Tech received another bowl bid. The Hokies were chosen to participate in the Liberty Bowl in Memphis, Tenn., against Miami (Fla.). The Hokies were 8-1-1 entering the contest and were led by All-American defensive back Frank Loria.

Miami, ranked ninth nationally, won 14-7 in a hard-hitting defensive struggle. The Hokies scored first on a 2-yard plunge by Tommy Francisco, but the Miami defense held Tech to only one first down in the last three quarters.

1968 LIBERTY BOWL

Tech returned to the Liberty Bowl two years later in 1968 and squared off against Mississippi. The Hokies were 7-3 after a rocky 2-3 start and were led by another defensive All-American, linebacker Mike Widger. Ole Miss had a quarterback by the name of Archie Manning and he sparked the Rebels to a 34-17 victory after Chris Kinzer's 40-yard field goal as time expired in the 1986 Peach Bowl gave Virginia Tech its first bowl victory.

Tech had taken a 17-0 first-quarter lead.

A member of Tech's 1966 and '68 bowl teams was none other than current head coach Frank Beamer, who was a starting defensive back. He was credited with three tackles in the 1968 game.

1980 PEACH BOWL

Tech next went bowling against Miami following the 1980 season and lost 20-10 in a hard-fought Peach Bowl contest. That Hokie team sported an 8-3 record and featured one of the finest defensive units in college football.

Tech tailback Cyrus Lawrence emerged as one of the biggest stars of the game. He rushed for 134 yards and scored the lone Hokie touchdown. Ashley Lee, then a freshman linebacker, had 15 tackles for the Techmen.

INDEPENDENCE BOWL

In Tech's first trip to the Independence Bowl in 1984, Outland Trophy winner Bruce Smith led Tech against the Air Force Falcons. Tech's powerful defensive unit held Air Force to only three first downs in the first half, but the Falcons got rolling in the second half. Quarterback Bart Weiss, named the game's Most Valuable Player, was the ringleader as Air Force won the battle, 23-7.

1986 PEACH BOWL

Who will ever forget "The Kick"? It ended perhaps the most stirring bowl game of the 1986 season as Virginia Tech's Chris Kinzer booted a 40-yard field goal to vault the Hokies past North Carolina State in the New Peach Bowl. The 25-24 victory came with no time showing on the clock and provided Tech with one of its top moments in football history.

INDEPENDENCE BOWL

Almost as dynamic was Tech's 45-20 win over Indiana of the Big Ten Conference in the 1993 Independence Bowl game.

The last minute of the first half of the Independence Bowl will be most remembered for its unbelievable action-packed ending. Virginia Tech was leading Indiana, 14-13, with only 35 seconds left until halftime. Indiana had the ball on the Tech 49-yard line, when DeWayne Knight exploded through the IU offensive line to cause a fumble. That is when Lawrence Lewis got "the world's greatest bounce," returning the loose ball 20 yards for a touchdown to give Tech a 21-13 lead over the Hoosiers.

The Hokies, however, were not finished with their dramatics. Tech's Jeff Holland blocked a Hoosiers' field goal try with no time left in the first half and Antonio Banks settled under the ball and raced 80 yards for a score to give the Hokies a 28-13 halftime lead.

1994 GATOR BOWL

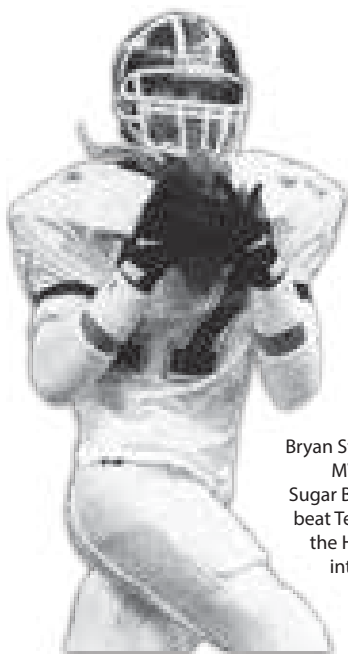

At the end of the 1994 season, the Hokies fell to a tough Tennessee team, 45-23, in a transplanted Gator Bowl contest that was held at Florida Field in Gainesville.

The high-powered Volunteer offense totaled 495 yards in the affair behind another Manning, this time Archie's son Peyton, and highly touted tailback James (Little Man) Stewart. Stewart, Tennessee's all-time leading rusher, ran for three touchdowns and threw for another score en route to earning the game's Most Valuable Player award.

Tech's Dwayne Thomas would not be outdone, dazzling the 62,200 fans in attendance by rushing 19 times for 102 yards and one touchdown. Thomas had a 1-yard burst for a score in the second quarter and rambled 27 yards to set up Maurice DeShazo's 7-yard touchdown run in the third quarter.

1993 Independence Bowl

Bryan Still was named MVP of the 1995 Sugar Bowl after Tech beat Texas 28-10 and the Hokies jumped into the national limelight.

1995 NOKIA SUGAR BOWL

Tech's 28-10 Nokia Sugar Bowl victory over Texas in 1995 stands alone as the Hokies' biggest win in football postseason play.

The 1995 Sugar Bowl was special, indeed. It was, at the time, the most prestigious bowl appearance for the Hokies and they made the most of it. Tech overcame a 10-point deficit to beat Texas and earn one of the most stirring victories in the school's athletic history.

The momentum changed dramatically when game MVP Bryan Still returned a punt 60 yards for a Tech touchdown with 2:34 left in the first half.

Tech gained a lead in the third quarter (14-10) on a 1-yard plunge by Marcus Parker. Then Still hauled in a 54-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jim Druckenmiller on a play that spelled doom for the Longhorns.

It was Tech's defense that accounted for the team's final touchdown with 5:06 left in the game. All-American Cornell Brown picked up his second sack of the game, causing a fumble, and tackle Jim Baron scooped up the ball and ran 20 yards to score.

1996 FEDEX ORANGE BOWL

In 1996, the Hokies played Nebraska in another Alliance bowl, the FedEx Orange Bowl. That game, too, was a pressure cooker from start to finish. Nebraska won, 41-21, but led by only three points at 24-21 late in the third quarter.

A crowd of 51,212 at Pro Player Stadium saw Tech quarterback Jim Druckenmiller throw three touchdown passes despite a fierce rush by Cornhusker defenders.

1998 GATOR BOWL

The Hokies made their second trip to the Gator Bowl following the 1997 season to face North Carolina.

The Tar Heels impressed a crowd of 54,116 at Alltel Stadium by holding Tech to a total of 185 yards, its lowest total of the season, and beating the Hokies, 42-3. Tech's only points came on a 40-yard field goal by Shayne Graham late in the third quarter.

1998 MUSIC CITY BOWL

Tech bounced back strong in 1998 by capping a 9-3 season with an eye-opening 38-7 victory over Alabama in the inaugural Music City Bowl in Nashville. A sellout crowd braved freezing rain and a wind chill that dipped below 15 degrees to watch Tech post its first ever win against the Crimson Tide.

Tech clung to a 10-7 lead at halftime before pulling away in the second half behind the defensive and special teams play of bowl MVP Corey Moore. The junior defensive end forced an interception that set up a Tech touchdown midway through the third quarter. Minutes later, he blocked an Alabama punt to pave the way for another Hokie TD. Tech went on to secure the win with two more touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

2000 NOKIA SUGAR BOWL

In the 1999 season, after a perfect 11-0 regular season campaign, the Hokies returned to the Nokia Sugar Bowl – this time to play for the national championship.

Tech once again put on a great show after a furious comeback led by quarterback Michael Vick. The Hokies led heavily favored Florida State heading into the fourth quarter before falling to the top-ranked Seminoles, 46-29.

2001 GATOR BOWL

For the second time in school history, the Hokies appeared in the same bowl back-to-back when they made the trip to the Gator Bowl in both 2001 and 2002.

Nearly 20,000 Hokie faithful watched Vick play his last game in a Tech uniform in the 2001 game in Jacksonville, Fla., against Clemson. Tailback Lee Suggs ran for three scores and the defense limited the Tigers to 88 yards rushing as the Hokies earned the fifth bowl win in school history. Tech capped its 10-1 season with 41-20 victory over Clemson.

2002 GATOR BOWL

Despite André Davis' 158 receiving yards in his final game as a Hokie, Tech was unable to hold off Florida State and lost the 2002 Gator Bowl, 30-17. The senior class that joined Davis in its last game at the Gator Bowl went down as the winningest class in school history, at the time, with a 39-9 record.

2002 DIAMOND WALNUT SAN FRANCISCO BOWL

The Hokies took their show to the West Coast following the 2002 season and captured a win in the Diamond Walnut San Francisco Bowl. Tech's 20-13 victory over Air Force gave the Hokies a 10-4 final record and marked the third time in four years that Tech had posted 10 or more victories. Tech quarterback Bryan Randall was named the game's most valuable offensive player. He completed 18 of 23 passes for 177 yards and did not have any turnovers.

2003 INSIGHT BOWL

Following the 2003 season, the Hokies made the trip out to Arizona, where they were downed by the California Bears 52-49 in the 2003 Insight Bowl, which was held in front of 42,364 fans at Bank One Ballpark in Phoenix. Cal kicker Tyler Frederickson made a 35-yard field goal on the final play of the game that lifted the Bears past the Hokies. The Hokies, who were playing in their 11th consecutive bowl game, finished the season 8-5 overall.

The loss overshadowed a brilliant game by Tech's offense. Randall had four touchdown passes and a rushing TD, while Keith Willis became the first Tech player ever to catch two touchdown passes in a bowl game. Ernest Wilford broke Antonio Freeman's career mark for receptions, and Kevin Jones, who played in his final game as a Hokie before heading to the NFL, led the Hokie rushing attack with 16 carries for 153 yards and a touchdown.

2005 NOKIA SUGAR BOWL

In the 2004 season, Tech capped its improbable run to the Atlantic Coast Conference title by beating Miami, which led to a berth in the Nokia Sugar Bowl for the third time. Like in 1995 and 1999, Tech fans came out in droves to support their Hokies as the game was a sellout and resulted in an economic impact of $209.92 million for the city and state.

Randall had a pair of touchdown passes, but the third-ranked Auburn Tigers held on for a 16-13 win over the Hokies in a hard-fought battle in New Orleans. Randall's final toss, an 80-yarder to freshman Josh Morgan, broke the Tech career touchdown passing mark. The loss couldn't take away from a dream season which saw the Hokies win the ACC title in their first year in the league while posting a 10-3 mark and a final national ranking of No. 10.

FOOTBALL LOCKER ROOM

In November of 2010, the Virginia Tech football team moved into its new locker room – a locker room that ranks as one of the best in the nation.

The $18 million building is nearly 42,000 square feet. The locker room, which is on the first floor of the building and was named in honor of longtime coach Frank Beamer thanks to the generosity of several donors, is 14,800 square feet and has lockers that are among the biggest in the nation. The lockers, which are 42 inches wide and made of wood, include a ventilation system to keep football pads and helmets dry, as well as individual safes for players to store valuables. Each locker also has electrical outlets for cell phone chargers and other electrical equipment.

At the entrance to each small hallway of lockers are words that define the Virginia Tech football program. These words include family, loyalty, trust and consistency.

The locker room also includes showers, a cold tub, a hot tub, a steam room and a sauna that is used extensively to help players recover from injuries and everyday aches and pains. The coaches also have their own locker room, which is adjacent to the large room with the hot and cold tubs, and the steam room and sauna.

The locker room has a definite Virginia Tech feel to it. It features a time clock and a lunch pail as soon as a player walks through the main entrance. These two things signify hard work and that one needs to put in the time to reap the rewards.

The second floor of the building is 12,900 square feet and includes a players' lounge and a study room. The lounge area has multiple 65-inch high definition televisions, pool tables and couches for players to sit and re-hydrate after practice. The study area features 12 study stations, with a computer at each station.

Adjacent to the lounge area is a 2,900 square-foot balcony that overlooks the Steve Johnson Practice Fields. Grills on the balcony allow for team cookouts, while also providing an area for recruits to gather on game day.

The building contains a third floor, but that floor was constructed for the wrestling program, which uses it as a wrestling room for practices. The floor also holds the wrestling team's locker room and coaches' offices.

STEVE JOHNSON PRACTICE FIELDS

The Virginia Tech football practice fields, located between Lane Stadium and Cassell Coliseum, were renamed the Steve Johnson Practice Fields in recognition of the accomplishments and philanthropy of alumnus Steve Johnson of Bristol, Va.

A standout tight end for the Hokies in the mid- and late-1980s, Johnson earned a bachelor's of secondary education from Virginia Tech in 1988. Following his college career, Johnson played for the Dallas Cowboys and New England Patriots, and currently serves as president and owner of Bristol, Va.-based Johnson Commercial Development, one of the largest commercial developers in the southeastern United States. Johnson Commercial Development is currently developing the Pinnacle, a 1 million-square-foot upscale retail development under construction in Bristol, Tenn.

Johnson is a generous supporter of the under-construction Virginia Tech indoor practice facility, having made a $1 million pledge toward construction. He previously contributed to the university to support construction of the Merryman Athletic Facility, which includes a room for speed and agility training that also bears his name. Johnson is a member of the Ut Prosim Society, a select group of Virginia Tech's most generous supporters.

The new indoor facility, located on the east side of the practice field, was completed this past summer.

HOME OF THE HOKIES

LANE STADIUM/WORSHAM FIELD

Rising high into the mountainous sky of the New River Valley, Virginia Tech's Lane Stadium enters its 51st year of football competition in 2015. The Tech football team has enjoyed over two decades of success, going to 22 straight bowl games and winning 10 or more games eight straight seasons from 2004-11. A big part of that success is the home-field advantage the Hokies enjoy at Lane Stadium/Worsham Field.

Billed as the toughest place in college football for opponents to play by Rivals.com in 2005 and one of the scariest places to play by ESPN.com in 2007, the Hokies play not only on one of the best playing surfaces in the nation, but with the south end zone and west side additions, the Hokies compete in one of the best stadiums in the nation.

Sitting at roughly 2,057 feet above sea level, the stadium is the second-highest among all FBS schools in the eastern United States, trailing only Appalachian State (3,300).

Completed in 1965, Lane Stadium/Worsham Field has gone through numerous changes, renovations and additions. But through it all, it has always been regarded as one of the finest places to watch – and toughest places for opponents to play – a college football game.

A TOWERING NEW LOOK

The third in a series of upgrades was completed at Lane Stadium/Worsham Field prior to the 2006 season, finishing off a magnificent project on the west side of the stadium.

Ground was broken in November of 2004 for the project and crews began building around the former press box, laying the above and below ground settings, as well as removing the two light towers on that side of the stadium.

At the conclusion of the 2004 season, the old press box was removed and the structure was filled in to match what was built up during the 2004 season.

A new press area on the west side, toward the south end zone, with a dining area and improved overall facilities, were a few of the additions.

Additional luxury suites, a new President's area, four private club seating areas, new concession stands, a ticket office, athletic fund offices, an athletics memorabilia area and a new student academic services area were also included in this project.

In addition, the fencing that surrounded the stadium was removed and the area on the west side exterior of the newly renovated stadium was landscaped with walkways and a weekday parking lot for ticket patrons and Hokie Club visitors. A flag plaza was installed near the southwest entrance. Dedicated to former football player and current Hokie Club supporter John Moody, it is a terrific meeting place with the U.S. flag flying alongside the commonwealth of Virginia flag and a Tech flag.

In the summer of 2003, $1.9 million was raised to fund the ongoing planning of the west side expansion, allowing for the ground breaking of the west side project.

In 2005, the inside of the stadium was also given a new look as Hokie Stone was added to the walls in each of the end zones, so there's no question as to where the game is being played for fans watching on television.

With continuous additions and improvements, Lane Stadium has kept up its reputation as one of the best places for college football.

THE SOUTH END ZONE

Prior to the 2002 season, Tech added 11,120 seats in the south end zone to enclose that end of the stadium. The double-deck structure is similar to the Cleveland Browns' "Dawg Pound" section and has bleacher, bench-back and club seats. The structure is enclosed, but has gaps between the existing structure and the new one. This is because of new building codes and a desire to get fans closer to the field.

Below the south end zone stands are several features: A football visitor's locker room which can be divided and used for other sports' visiting teams in the winter and spring.

The June Oblinger Shott Media Center, which houses a press room, two press conference areas, three radio rooms, a photo work room and several storage rooms.

The outside of the facility also received a new look, making the entrance more inviting. Walkways and landscaping give the south and west sides a more appealing entrance for fans and teams.

Another addition to the facility is the turf and drainage system that was replaced in the summer of 2001 as Tech became the first collegiate football team to have a new state-of-the-art GreenTech ITM natural Bermuda grass sports field system. It provides excellent drainage with irrigation lines and a vacuum system that can handle up to 16 inches of rain an hour. In the winter of 2003-04, a heating system was installed to keep the grass at an optimum temperature during the winter months.

This innovative system is in place in just a handful of other stadiums in the world and makes Worsham Field one of the finest playing surfaces around.

A WINNING TRADITION

On Sept. 22, 1994, Tech won its 100th game in Lane Stadium in memorable fashion before a national television audience on ESPN with a 34-6 win over rival West Virginia.

On Nov. 1, 2003, Tech upset No. 2 Miami 31-7 to pick up its 150th all-time win at Lane Stadium, marking the highest-ranked opponent the Hokies have ever defeated.

Tech's overall record at Lane Stadium is 208 wins, 76 losses and six ties in 50 years of play. The Hokies are 134-39-1 at home during Coach Frank Beamer's tenure at Virginia Tech and more impressively, are 113-25 in Blacksburg during the past 22 seasons.

Prior to the 1989 season, Lane Stadium underwent further improvements. Tech received

Original construction of Lane Stadium began in April, 1964 and was completed four years later. The Hokies did not wait for completion, playing their first game in the stadium on Oct. 2, 1965. Tech defeated William & Mary, 9-7, that day with only the west stands and the center section of Lane Stadium, featuring a modern lighting system and a seating capacity of 65,632 for this season after a new section of club seats were replaced on the west side in 2012, ranks as one of the nation's finest collegiate football facilities.

HOME OF THE HOKIES

a donation of 16 flags with the “VT” logo for the stadium. Lane Stadium also received a new paint job which included the addition of maroon and orange stripes around the inner walls of the facility.

In 1991, a new scoreboard bearing BIG EAST Conference logos replaced the old scoreboard at the south end of the stadium, while a new auxiliary scoreboard was placed at the north end. In the spring of 1994, renovations were completed on seven lower sections of the east stands. Renovations included replacing concrete risers and the addition of wheelchair seating.

Before the 1994 season, plaques bearing retired jerseys of Tech heroes Bruce Smith, Carroll Dale, the late Frank Loria and Jim Pyne were added to the wall in the north end zone. With the addition of the north end zone seats, the four retired numbers now fly on flag poles above those stands.

In 2002, three more flags – those bearing the names and numbers of Frank Beamer, Michael Vick and Cornell Brown – were added, retiring their jerseys, but not their numbers. In 2006, a banner for center Jake Grove was added to that collection, as well as one for Corey Moore in 2009.

In 2008, banners were placed on both the east and west sides on beams honoring conference player of the year and national award honorees, including Bronko Nagurski Trophy and Lombardi Award winner Corey Moore and Outland Trophy honoree Bruce Smith.

Prior to the 1998 season, the oldest bleachers were replaced with new locust wood and the stands were waterproofed and top coated. On the east side, the roof on the former visitors’ locker room was replaced along with the wooden bleachers in the three sections above the dressing room. Also, additional handicapped seating was added.

In addition to the seats in the north end zone constructed before the 1999 season, the interior block walls and concourse tunnels were seal-coated to match the exterior of Cassell Coliseum and the Merryman Center.

Before the 2000 season, a new scoreboard, complete with “HokieVision” was installed behind the north end zone bleachers. That board was replaced by a massive structure prior to the 2013 season.

The south end zone construction project eliminated the old wooden bleachers in that area. But the north end zone bleachers were expanded down to the field, adding close to 600 new, permanent seats to make the north end zone look similar to the new south end zone. This is where The Marching Virginians – one of Tech’s two marching bands – sit. These moves cut the capacity to 53,662.

Prior to the 2000 season, approximately 3,000 permanent bleacher seats were added in the north end zone, and, prior to the 1999 season, 2,100 permanent seats were added in the same end zone. In 2003, permacaps were installed over all the wooden seats to enhance fan comfort.

In the 2013-14 academic year, a distributive antennae system (DAS) was erected behind the east stands as part of a campus-wide upgrade of cellular phone service. It increases cell phone capacity across campus and particularly on game days when nearly 60,000 people — many with smart phones — enter the stadium.

LONGTIME COMMUNICATIONS GURU RETIRES AFTER 40 YEARS AT TECH

Dave Smith, Virginia Tech’s associate AD for athletics communications, retired from his post June 1 after nearly 40 years of working for the athletics department in the communications office.

Smith, a 1970 graduate of the school, started working at Tech in 1975 and toiled as an assistant for 23 years. He worked with nearly every sport at the beginning of his career before eventually becoming the primary contact for men’s basketball and baseball.

In 1998, then-AD Jim Weaver named Smith the leader of the communications office after Jack Williams retired. In addition to running the day-to-day operations of the office, Smith remained as the media contact for the baseball program and assumed the duties as the primary contact for the football program. He handled all media requests for head football coach Frank Beamer during his final 17 years, and the Roanoke, Virginia, native helped produced game notes, game recaps and media guides as well during that time.

The College Sports Information Directors of America honored Smith with a Lifetime Achievement Award at the annual convention in Orlando, Florida, on June 15. This award goes to the CoSIDA member who has served at least 25 years in the profession and is retiring or leaving the profession. In 2013, the Virginia Sports Information Directors presented Smith with a Distinguished Service Award, which goes to individuals who have promoted college athletics and the concept of the student-athlete and who have worked for a minimum of 20 years.

The athletics department honored Smith a couple times over his final year, presenting him with a football jersey before the Hokies’ last home game in 2014 and showing a video tribute of his career during a departmental staff meeting.

Smith and wife Debbie, a math instructor at Tech, plan on remaining in Blacksburg for the foreseeable future, while mixing in vacations to Charleston, South Carolina, and Hilton Head, South Carolina, and trips to concerts to watch their favorite bands.

HALL OF FAME MUSEUM

Since the start of the 2008 football season, fans have had the opportunity to visit Virginia Tech's Hall of Fame museum located on the west side of the football stadium. Covering two stories, the museum features all Hokie sports with galleries, display cases and interactive screens. Individual athletes honored include All-Americans, Academic All-Americans and Tech's Hall of Fame members. Fans can review the history of Tech athletics through a photo timeline. The museum is open to the public Monday through Friday between 9 a.m., and 3 p.m. It is closed on weekends and on game days.

MERRYMAN FOOTBALL MEMORABILIA ROOM

Overlooking the Steve Johnson Practice Field, the football memorabilia room offers visitors several exciting exhibits on Virginia Tech's proud past. Among the many displays are spots dedicated to Tech's rich bowl history, legendary coach Frank Beamer, the Hokies' uniforms, the program's standout players and trophies from championships and awards earned over the years.

PRIDE AND JOY OF VIRGINIA TECH FOOTBALL

Special teams are an integral part of Hokie football and one of the units is called "Pride and Joy." These NFL players and Tech support staff are also a source of pride and joy due to their commitment to Virginia Tech on and off the field. Virginia Tech has a prominent display in the Hall of Legends in the Merryman Athletic Center to honor such former players.

John Engelberger was a dominating defensive end who went from walk-on, to four-year starter at Tech, to second-round NFL Draft pick, earning All-America honors and his college degree along the way.

Waddey Harvey was a standout who started three seasons at defensive tackle and won the coveted Williams Award for leadership and character before joining the Buffalo Bills. Frank and Cheryl Beamer sponsored Harvey for recognition on the Pride and Joy display.

Before starting an NFL career, Jim Pyne, a powerful center in the early 1990s, started 41 games and allowed just one sack in over 2,700 snaps on his way to becoming the Hokies' first unanimous All-American.

Michael Vick was an electrifying quarterback who made a lasting impact on college football while helping Virginia Tech to a national championship game and back-to-back 11-1 seasons before becoming the top NFL Draft pick in 2001.

A two-time All-American, Cornell Brown became the first Virginia Tech football player to gain consensus All-America honors as a junior when he was named to five first teams in 1995. He was selected National Defensive Player of the Year by Football News in 1995.

Lester Karlin is a veteran member of the Virginia Tech staff who made his first contribution to Hokie athletics as a student assistant in the football equipment room from 1971-73 and then as the equipment manager from 1978 until retiring in 2014.

Pierson Prioleau saw action on more than 2,000 plays at rover and on special teams, while starting 36 consecutive games for the Hokies from 1995 through 1998. After helping Tech to two bowl championships, Prioleau began a productive NFL career that included a Super Bowl title with New Orleans in 2010.

Mickey Fitzgerald was a bruising tight end and fullback at Virginia Tech in the late 1970s who earned the nickname "The Incredible Hulk" with his physical style of play. In 1977, Fitzgerald became the first Tech back of the modern era to rush for over 100 yards in each of his first four starts as a running back.

Shayne Graham is a local product out of Dublin, Va., who earned All-BIG EAST honors as a place-kicker. He helped lead the Hokies to the 1999 National Championship game, kicking a game-winner as time expired to beat West Virginia and keep the perfect season alive. He has gone on to become one of the most accurate kickers in NFL history.

Nick Cullen played in 35 games as a wide receiver over a four-year career from 1987-1990 for the Hokies. In his senior season, he flourished, catching 37 passes for 568 yards and three touchdowns, including 13 passes in a single game against Southern Miss, which still stands as a school record for most receptions in a single game.

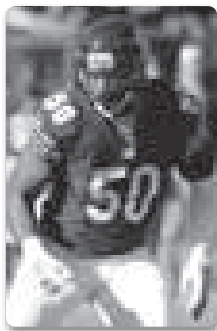

Steve Johnson is a long-time contributor to the Tech program and has the practice fields named in his honor. The tight end had eight touchdown catches in his Tech career and played two seasons in the NFL with the New England Patriots.

UNIVERSITY AND MEDIA INFORMATION

ABOUT VIRGINIA TECH

Dedicated to its motto, Ut Prosim (That I May Serve), Virginia Tech takes a hands-on, engaging approach to education, preparing scholars to be leaders in their fields and communities. As the commonwealth's most comprehensive university and its leading research institution, Virginia Tech offers 240 undergraduate and graduate degree programs to more than 31,000 students and manages a research portfolio of more than $496 million. The university fulfills its land-grant mission of transforming knowledge to practice through technological leadership and by fueling economic growth and job creation locally, regionally and across Virginia.

LEARNING

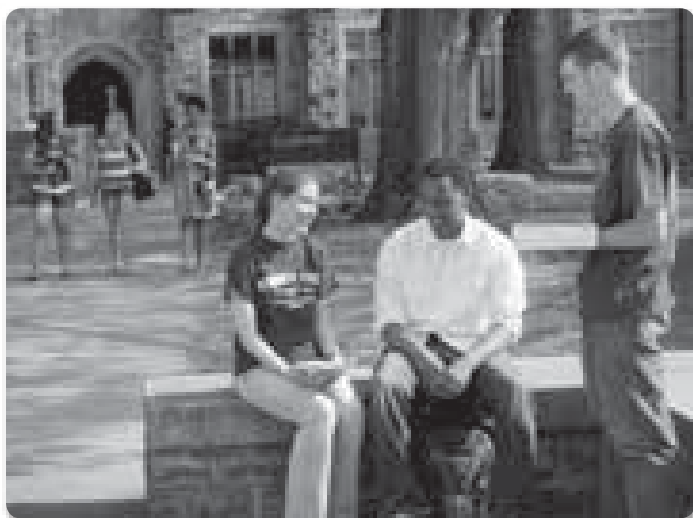

Virginia Tech's challenging academic standards and hands-on, minds-on teaching philosophy attract high-achieving students. More degree programs are available through the university's eight colleges (Agriculture and Life Sciences, Architecture and Urban Studies, Engineering, Liberal Arts and Human Sciences, Natural Resources and Environment, Pamplin College of Business, Science, and Virginia-Maryland College of Veterinary Medicine) and Graduate School than at any other university in the commonwealth. Some 93 percent of all departments offer e-learning courses.

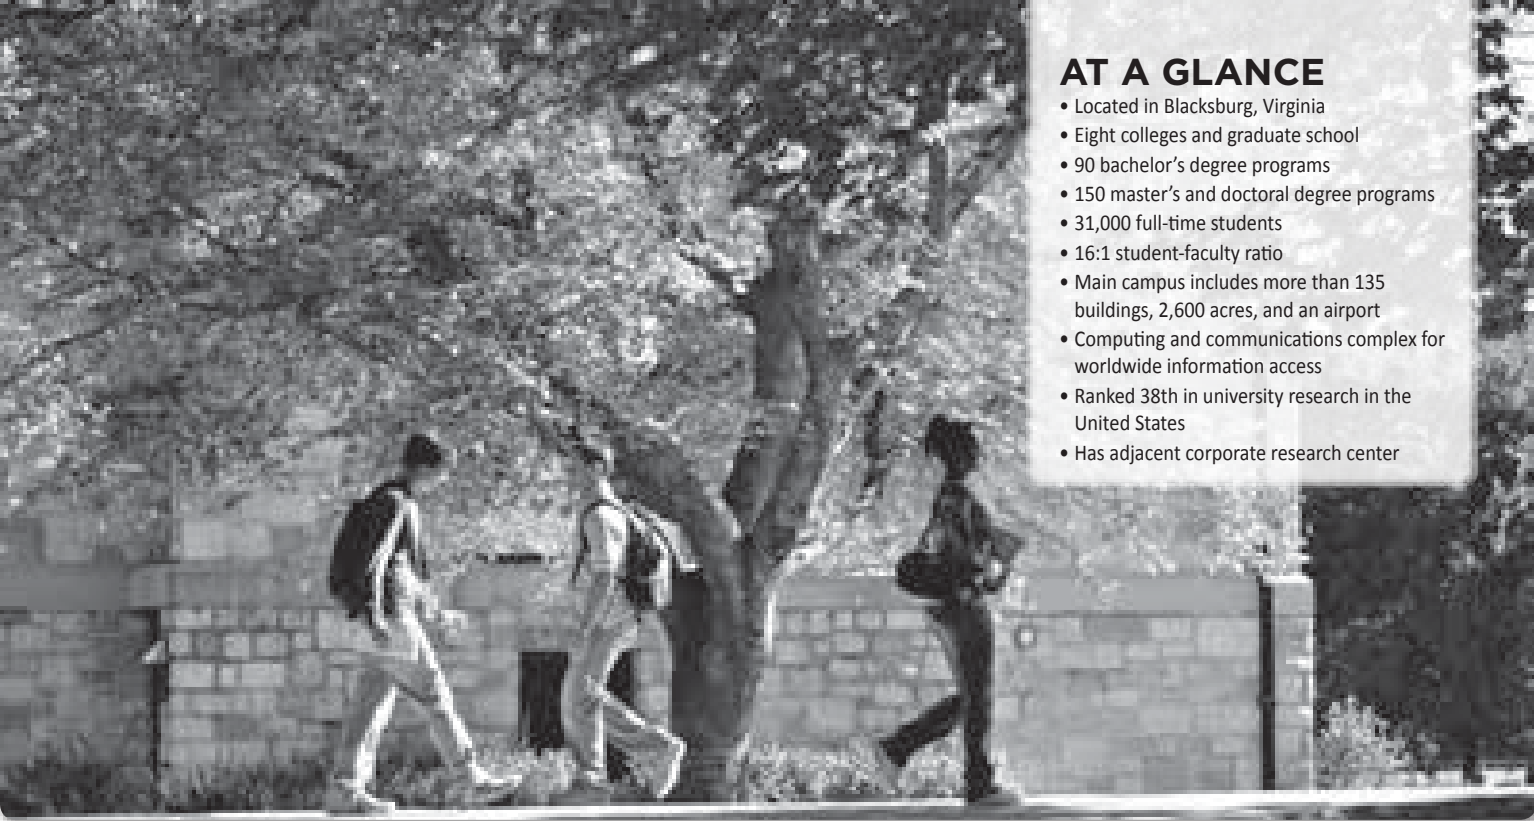

DISCOVERY

The university's groundbreaking research transforms lives and communities. Virginia Tech ranks 38 among the top research universities in the United States, and with more than 100 research centers and seven university-wide research institutes, the university also consistently ranks among the top institutions in industry-supported research. Tech's nationally and internationally recognized faculty and motivated students are involved in thousands of research projects in fields ranging from biotechnology to materials, from the environment and energy to food and human health, and from transportation to computing information. The university also boasts an award-winning research park that is home to more than 170 companies.

ENGAGEMENT

As part of Virginia Tech's outreach mission and in adherence to its motto, the university serves and engages the citizens of the commonwealth, the nation and the world. The university is involved in a multitude of economic and community development projects and encourages faculty members to develop global course content and study-abroad opportunities for students. Virginia Cooperative Extension, operated jointly by Virginia Tech and Virginia State University, has been helping people improve their economic, cultural and social well-being for nearly a century.

TIMOTHY D. SANDS

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT

Timothy D. Sands is the 16th president of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. Throughout his distinguished academic career he has served as scientist, researcher, inventor, educator, and a leader at several of America's foremost universities.

"I am delighted and honored to serve this great university. Virginia Tech is a truly a special place. The spirit of community and service exhibited by students, faculty, staff and alumni is unlike anything I've seen. Our motto, Ut Prosim (That I May Serve) and our drive to 'Invent the Future' constantly motivate us to seek answers to the most challenging questions facing Virginia and the nation," said Sands.

Appointed to his position on June 1, 2014, Sands marked the first year of his presidency on Twitter by sending a note to students about how he had grown as a "freshman". "I no longer need a lanyard for my keys and Hokie Passport, and have grown fond of the ballad 'Enter Sandman,'" Sands tweeted. "I now know that 'grey dolomite-limestone' is an insufficient description of our beloved Hokie Stone. I feel like I've been a Hokie for 143 years every time I see the Corps of Cadets Pass in Review. What is a Hokie? Now I know and understand."

During his first year, President Sands began laying the groundwork for advancing Virginia Tech to a new level of excellence. One of his first initiatives was the creation of InclusiveVT, a university-wide effort to advance inclusion and diversity on in the university's many communities. President Sands is personally leading this effort through the President's Inclusion and Diversity Executive Council. University deans, vice presidents and other senior leaders are developing initiatives for improvement with feedback from students, employees and community members.

"Inclusion and diversity are the keys to innovation," Sands said. "We need fresh voices and new perspectives that will challenge us to think differently and develop new ideas. This will also prepare our students to compete and thrive in a rapidly changing global environment."

Virginia Tech continues to grow, receiving a record number of freshman applications for the class of 2019. In response to this growing interest and in keeping with the university's desire to be accessible to qualified Virginia students, President Sands has proposed increasing the university's undergraduate enrollment 2,000 by 2018 and as much as 5,000 over the next seven years.

In May of 2015 President Sands announced that the Virginia Tech community would engage in a year-long visioning process to advance the university's status as an internationally recognized, global land-grant institution and to strategically address the challenges and opportunities presented by the changing landscape of higher education. The initiative will provide a framework for charting the university's course toward its 175th anniversary in 2047 and inform the next strategic planning effort.

"I believe that Virginia Tech is poised to become a 21st century, global land-grant university leader," Sands said. "By building upon our traditional focus and range of disciplinary excellence, we are positioned to advance the university and the Commonwealth by promoting an educated and engaged society, knowledge creation, strategic business partnerships and job creation – the fruits of a modern research university."

Throughout his academic career and administrative leadership positions, President

Sands has remained connected to students. He continued this practice during his first year at Virginia Tech by attending Hokie Camp and helping students carry their belongings during Move-In days. He frequently visits the dining halls and during finals week he and his wife, Dr. Laura Sands, made grilled cheese sandwiches for students studying in Newman Library. He stays in regular contact with students via Twitter, where he tweets as @VTSandsman.

Before taking the helm at Tech, President Sands, 57, served as Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Indiana. He served as Purdue's acting president during the Fall semester of 2012.

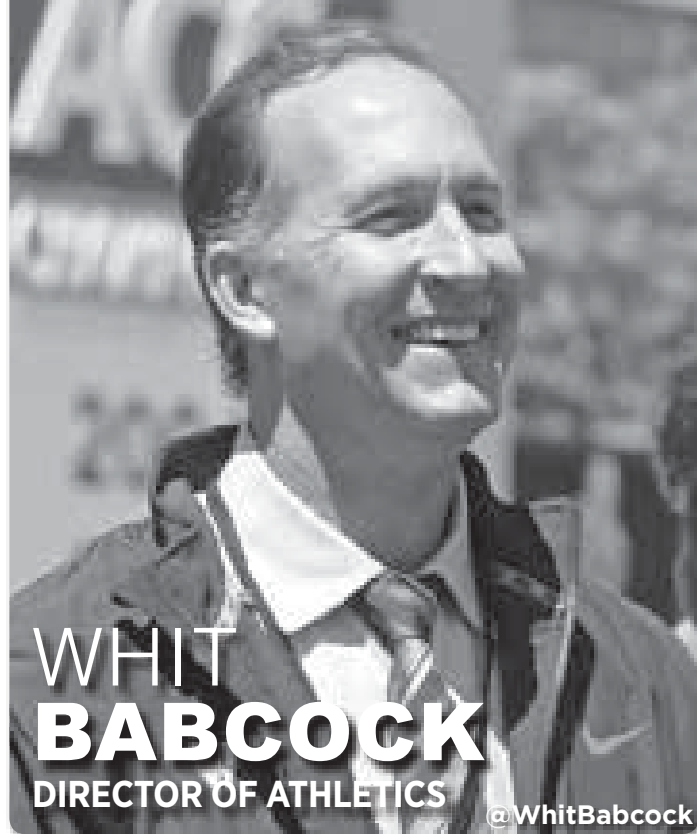

As Purdue's chief academic officer, he led efforts to elevate student success, resulting in the highest first-to-second year retention and four-year graduation rates in Purdue's history. He initiated a move toward full-year utilization of facilities that will enhance opportunities for student internships while allowing students to maintain academic progress during the summer.

President Sands earned a bachelor's degree with highest honors in engineering physics and a master's degree and doctorate in materials science from the University of California, Berkeley. He joined the Purdue faculty in 2002 as the Basil S. Turner Professor of Engineering in the schools of materials engineering and electrical and computer engineering. Prior to becoming provost, he served as the Mary Jo and Robert L. Kirk Director of the Birck Nanotechnology Center in Purdue's Discovery Park. From 1993-2002, Sands was a professor of materials science and engineering at the University of California, Berkeley, and before that, he performed research and directed research groups at Bell Communications Research (Bellcore) in Red Bank, New Jersey. Throughout his career, he has participated in and led research teams and academic programs that have been characterized by open collaboration across a wide array of disciplines.

President Sands has published more than 250 refereed papers and conference proceedings and has been granted 20 patents in electronic and optoelectronic materials and devices. His recent research efforts have been directed toward the design and development of novel nanocomposite materials for environmentally friendly and cost-effective solid-state lighting, direct conversion of heat to electrical power and thermoelectric refrigeration. He is a fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE), the Materials Research Society (MRS) and the National Academy of Inventors (NAI).

President Sands is joined in Blacksburg by his wife, Dr. Laura Sands, a professor of gerontology in the Department of Human Development at Virginia Tech. All four of their children graduated from Purdue.

Despite a daunting schedule, President Sands maintains his long-established fitness regimen which includes early-morning pick-up basketball in War Memorial Gym and exploration of the region's scenic biking and hiking trails.

Whit Babcock was officially announced as Virginia Tech's Director of Athletics on Jan. 24, 2014. Babcock, a former college baseball player at James Madison University, joined the Hokies following two and a half years at the University of Cincinnati, where he served as the Director of Athletics, and five years at the University of Missouri, where he served as the executive associate director of athletics.

Now in his second year at Tech, Babcock continues making his mark in all facets of the department. His approach is to ensure that the programs continue their recent string of successes, while he also remains sharply focused on the areas of academics, student-athlete experience, fan engagement and fundraising.

The Hokies have enjoyed success both in the playing venues and in the classroom during Babcock's brief tenure. In 2015, Virginia Tech won ACC championships in the sports of men's track and field and wrestling – the school's 19th and 20th ACC team titles since joining the league. During the 2014-15 academic year, seven teams qualified for NCAA competition, including women's cross country, men's golf, women's soccer, softball, men's tennis, women's tennis and wrestling.

Men's indoor track and field claimed an ACC championship, while wrestling won the ACC dual title in 2015. Both men's tennis (18th) and women's tennis

In addition, the Hokies' track and field and swimming and diving teams sent several individuals to the NCAA Championships in those respective sports, including Irena Sediva, who won the 2015 national title in the javelin, breaking her own school and ACC record in the process. Virginia Tech once again excelled in the Learfield Sports Director's Cup standings in 2014-15, finishing with its highest-ever point total at 640.50 and tying for its best-ever finish at No. 35.

Academically, 50 percent of Tech's student-athletes maintain a cumulative grade-point average 3.0 or better. The average team cumulative GPA is 3.06, and 13 teams maintain a 3.0 cumulative GPA or better.

Babcock also unveiled the "Pylons of Promise," a landmark document that sets forth the university's and the athletics department's commitment to student-athletes during their times at Virginia Tech. This document served as Virginia Tech's response to the changes in the NCAA governance landscape. The Pylons of Promise is based on the ideals emblazoned on the eight pylons at the Virginia Tech War Memorial Court.

Babcock and his staff launched several initiatives in Year No. 2, with the announcement of the 110% Hokie Campaign and the Twenty4You initiative. He recognized Tech's student-athletes giving 110 percent, so the 110% Hokie Campaign calls for donors to do the same, increasing their annual contributions by 10 percent to help offset Tech's commitment in paying the cost-of-attendance "gap" for its student-athletes.

The Twenty4You initiative is a 24-point plan designed to improve the gameday experience at Lane Stadium based on fan feedback following the 2014 season. This plan looked at everything from ticketing to parking to concessions and music and much, much more, and will be implemented for the 2015 season.

Babcock also made his mark on Tech's facilities in his second year, as he and his staff oversaw the completion of a new $21.3 million indoor practice facility behind the Jamerson Athletics Center. This facility will be used by the football program, and also other sports, including the men's and women's soccer, baseball, softball and lacrosse programs. He also has a vision for future improvements to Rector Field House, Tech Softball Park, English Field, Cassell Coliseum and the Burrows-Burleson Tennis Center.

Babcock's inaugural year at Virginia Tech was a busy one, as he hired a new basketball coach in Buzz Williams, who took Marquette University to the NCAA Tournament five times in six seasons. He also signed both longtime football coach Frank Beamer and defensive coordinator Bud Foster to contract extensions, and he oversaw the launching of a new mission statement and core values for the athletics department.

Babcock and his staff formed a committee to vet a new mission statement and core values, and an inclusive process sought input from university president Dr. Timothy Sands, the University Athletic Council, the university's Board of Visitors, student-athletes and coaches. The mission statement and the core values – integrity, service, honor, excellence, and strong together – represent the foundation of the department and every decision that is made.

In Babcock's inaugural year, department officials renewed an emphasis on the fan experience. They enhanced some of their game day features, adding fan amenities, customer initiatives, a gameday app and new interactive video scoreboard elements, as well as the free Hokie Village fan festival. Virginia Tech also made significant investments in a new lighting system and sound system for Cassell Coliseum and will unveil Courtside at Cassell VIP seating for events at the facility beginning in 2015-16.

Babcock's background in fundraising, marketing, promotions, ticket sales, licensing and multimedia partnerships were key attributes in support of his hiring. In his introductory press conference, Babcock cited three guiding principles for his vision for the athletics department's future: commitment to comprehensive excellence, centering the department's focus on the student-athlete experience, and engaging the community.

During his two-year stint as the AD at Cincinnati, Babcock initiated a new administrative structure within the department, proposed a comprehensive vision and capital campaign for athletics facility enhancement, including an $86-million renovation and expansion to Nippert Stadium, the school's football stadium. He also set forth a scholarship enhancement plan for Olympic sports, crafted a three-year strategic plan for all facets of the program, hired head coaches in football, baseball, men's track and field, lacrosse, volleyball and women's soccer and implemented numerous external relations strategies to connect and engage with Bearcats' alumni, donors, fans and students.

The Cincinnati athletics department operated under Babcock's ONE TEAM philosophy that centered on the core values of integrity, respect, determination and excellence working together as 547 student-athletes, 150 staff, 19 sports and ONE TEAM.

He also implemented numerous changes in Cincinnati's academic area aimed at enhancing the student-athlete experience; reinstated and enhanced scholarship funding to Olympic sports; added men's indoor track and field as the department's 19th sport and streamlined his executive team to ensure better lines of communications across the department and university community.

Babcock's last full season at Cincinnati (2012-13) was a successful one for the Bearcats that saw the football team win its fourth conference championship in five seasons and the men's basketball squad earn a spot in the NCAA Tournament for the third straight year. Cincinnati was one of just six schools in the nation to have both its football and men's basketball programs be nationally ranked at the end of the year. Those competitive successes led to Cincinnati's highest finish in the Learfield Sports Directors' Cup standings.

Academically, Cincinnati transitioned from an academic calendar of quarters to semesters, and the Bearcats had a departmental GPA of 3.028, marking their eighth consecutive grading period with a 3.0 GPA or higher and 14 of the last 15 quarters in which the department had a 3.0 GPA or higher. Overall, 11 of 17 teams achieved a GPA of 3.0 or higher.

Babcock's first year at UC was also certainly full of notable highlights, both on the field and in the classroom. The football team won the BIG EAST Conference title and defeated Vanderbilt University in the Liberty Bowl. The men's basketball team reached the title game of the BIG EAST Tournament and advanced to the NCAA Sweet 16.

Over the past five years, both while at Cincinnati and Virginia Tech, Babcock has been active on the local and national speaking circuits. He has presented before the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA), National Association of Collegiate Women Athletics Administrators (NACWAA) and the 1-A Athletic Directors Association annual institute. He is a past president of the National Association of Athletic Development Directors (NAADD).

Prior to his time at Cincinnati, Babcock's 22-year career path included stops at Missouri, West Virginia, Auburn, and James Madison.

A native of Harrisonburg, Virginia, Babcock lettered four seasons in baseball at James Madison University and served as team captain his senior year. He earned his bachelor's degree from JMU in 1992. In 1996, he received his master's in sports management from West Virginia University.

He and his wife, Kelly, have three sons: Andrew, Brett and Eli.

ATHLETIC FUND

HOKIE

In January, the NCAA passed legislation allowing institutions to pay a student-athlete's full cost of attendance. Virginia Tech will do this at an increased cost of approximately $950,000 per year. The scholarship bill will be roughly $13 million annually. We ask that you consider increasing your annual gift by 10% and join many other Hokies as 110% HOKIES. Thus far the 110% campaign is off to a great start. Our student athletes give 110% each day as they strive to excel academically and win championships in the nation's best conference. Be a 110% HOKIE this fall!

Donors make gifts in outright forms such as cash and stock, or through planned or deferred gifts. Jim Pearman of Salem, Va., is the current president of the Athletic Fund and Sandra Davis of Blacksburg, Va., is the vice president.

NCAA COMPLIANCE

VIRGINIA TECH ATHLETICS: WINNING THE RIGHT WAY

INFORMATION FOR PROSPECTS AND THEIR PARENTS

Compliance with NCAA rules is a never-ending process that requires diligence on the part of the Virginia Tech Department of Athletics and the entire university community. Below is a brief summary of the basic issues that may face a potential student-athlete during his/her recruitment by a Division I college or university.

1. For NCAA rules purposes, you become a "prospective student-athlete" – commonly referred to as a prospect – once you have started classes for the ninth grade (seventh grade for men's basketball).

2. A "representative of an institution's athletics interests" (commonly referred to as a booster) is defined by the NCAA as anyone who:

- Is now, or previously has been, a member of any organization promoting the institution's intercollegiate athletics program;
- Has made a financial contribution to the athletics program or an athletics booster organization;
- Has helped arrange any employment for a student-athlete;
- Has been involved, in any way, in the promotion of the athletics program.

3. Please be aware that any former Virginia Tech student or former or current member of the Hokie Club is automatically considered a Virginia Tech booster. According to NCAA rules, once an individual is identified as a booster, he/she retains that status forever.

4. A booster may not solicit the enrollment of a prospect with the goal of athletics participation in any manner (no phone calls, letters or in-person encounters). On those occasions when a booster unavoidably comes into contact with a prospect, conversation must be limited to normal civility. The conversation must conclude quickly, and no recruitment may occur.

5. It is not permissible for you (or your family) to receive any benefit, inducement or arrangement such as cash, clothing, cars, improper expenses, transportation, gifts or loans to encourage you to sign a National Letter of Intent or to attend any college.

6. A "contact" is any off-campus, face-to-face encounter between you or your parent(s) or a legal guardian and a member of a college coaching staff during which any dialogue occurs beyond an exchange of greeting. NCAA rules do not permit contacts until July 1 prior to a prospect's senior year. (In men's and women's basketball, contact is permitted on a prospect's first day of classes their junior year.)

7. An "evaluation" is any off-campus activity by a member of a college coaching staff designed to assess your academic qualifications or athletic ability, including any visit to your high school (during which no contact occurs) or the observation of any practice or competition in which you participate.

8. The timing for phone calls depends on the sport that is recruiting you. Football coaches may begin on April 15 of the prospect's junior year (one call between April 15 and May 31 is permitted). After May 31, regular calls not to exceed one per week may begin for football on September 1 of their senior year.

If you are a prospect, unlimited calls to you or your family may be made under the following circumstances:

- During the five days immediately before your official (paid) visit to a collegiate institution;
- On the day of a coach's off-campus contact with you;
- During the time beginning with the initial National Letter of Intent signing date in your sport, through the two days after the signing date; and
- In the sport of football only, during the 48 hours prior to and 48 hours after 7 a.m., on the initial signing date for the National Letter of Intent.
- In the sport of football, baseball, men's & women's basketball, cross country/track & field, women's lacrosse, softball and volleyball, during the permissible off-campus contact periods.
- The calendar day after you sign a National Letter of Intent or Virginia Tech's written offer of admission and/or financial aid; or Virginia Tech received a financial deposit in response to your offer of admission.
- In men's basketball, coaches may make unlimited phone calls at any time starting June 15 after a prospect's sophomore year.
- In women's basketball, coaches may make unlimited phone calls at any time starting September 1 at the beginning of a prospect's junior year.

Coaches also may accept collect calls, and athletics departments are permitted to utilize a toll-free number to receive telephone calls from you (or your family) on or after July 1 following your junior year. You or your family may call a college coach at your expense at any time.

9. In all sports except men's and women's basketball, letters to you from coaches are permitted beginning September 1 at the beginning of your junior year in high school. A Division I school may provide you with any nonpersonalized, unbound materials that are 8½ x 11 or less in size. These materials must be sent via regular first-class mail service and may include any of the following:

- General correspondence, including letters, U.S. Postal Service postcards and institutional note cards;
- Game programs which may not include posters and one Student-Athlete Handbook;
- NCAA educational information;
- Pre-enrollment information after signing a National Letter of Intent or other written commitment to the university;
- Official academic, admissions and student services publications published or videotapes produced by the institution and available to all students;
- Schedule and business cards;
- Questionnaires which may be provided at any time; and
- Camp brochures, which may be provided at any time (provided it is not at a competition).

10. An "Official Visit" is a visit by a prospect to a college where the college pays for some or all of the prospect's expenses. These expenses may include transportation, lodging, meals and/or entertainment. Official Visits are permissible once a prospect has started classes for their senior year.

The purpose of the Virginia Tech Compliance Office is to help make you aware of relevant NCAA rules and assist you in guarding your eligibility. Ultimately, however, you are responsible for protecting your eligibility. This page is provided as a quick-reference guide to give you a basic understanding of NCAA recruiting rules. We encourage you to visit our webpage at www.athletics.vt.edu/compliance for additional information and links providing comprehensive guidance concerning the full range of NCAA regulations. Also, please feel free to call or e-mail any member of the Hokie Compliance Team if you have any questions.

HOKIEVISION

ON THE CUTTING EDGE OF SPORTS AND ENTERTAINMENT VIDEO

Led by Megan Caligiuri, senior director of visual and broadcast communications, the HokieVision staff is on the cutting edge of entertainment both online and in games. The full-time staff of six, plus scholarship student workers, has worked together to put out top-notch work that highlights the best of Virginia Tech Athletics.

The group's accomplishments from the 2014-15 athletic year include:

- The production over 30 in-house ESPN3 broadcasts streamed on watchespn.com
- The production of live streams of press conferences and athletic events on HokiesXtra
- The production of 100 percent of the content shown on HokieVision at football and basketball, including popular in-game entertainment pieces such as "Name That Tune," "Shout video/Horse on a Treadmill," "This is Virginia Tech Football," "Who Tweeted It," "Get to Know ...," "Enter Sandman" team intro, and hype videos
- The production of social media pieces like bad lip-reading to engage fans
- The production of video to supplement department initiatives such as the 110%

Hokie campaign, philanthropical causes (Lone Survivor), This Is Home campaign and Monogram Club

- Highlight student athlete accomplishments outside of competition
- Producing an in-house signing day live show for football
- Producing all the video content on hokiesports.com including weekly features such as "5 Things," "Nutrition Tip," "Play of the Week" and "The Rundown"
- Running the video boards and fascia LEDs during game day
- Shooting game highlights of every home football, basketball and Olympic sport contest
- Conducting player and coach interviews

The stadium video display, which was installed in 2013, replaced a 13-year-old structure in the north end zone of Lane Stadium. Complete with a new Daktronics line array sound system, this true high-definition video board measures 45-by-95 feet with a display that takes up approximately 4,275 square feet to make it one of the largest video boards in an on-campus stadium.

A production studio with state-of-the-art equipment was built in Merryman Athletic Center for the use of the staff to run the video board in Lane Stadium, plus the two boards in Cassell Coliseum. From this master control room, HokieVision has the ability to produce network quality broadcasts that air on ESPN3 and hokiesports.com.

The video staff can use the LED display and the accompanying for on-field presentations, graduation ceremonies and other stadium events.

The video display in Lane Stadium is operated from a production studio in Merryman Athletic Center.

VIRGINIA TECH IMG SPORTS MARKETING

IMG College, a national leader in the collegiate sports marketing industry, is in its 19th year as the exclusive worldwide multi-media and advertising rights holder for Virginia Tech Athletics through its 2010 acquisition of ISP Sports.

In this partnership with the athletics program, Virginia Tech IMG Sports Marketing develops, produces and sells an extensive range of sports marketing opportunities for Tech. Radio play-by-play and call-in shows, television coaches shows and other related programming, Lane Stadium and Cassell Coliseum venue signage, video board and promotions, along with print and Internet advertising are available.

During its very successful partnership with Virginia Tech, IMG College has developed the Virginia Tech IMG Sports Network into the largest collegiate sports radio network in Virginia. Broadcast coverage includes the commonwealth of Virginia, as well as portions of Maryland, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Washington, D.C., and West Virginia.

The network's television coverage of Tech athletics is centered around Virginia Tech Sports Today, a Sunday morning magazine show aired on a network of affiliates throughout the region, including WDBJ-7 in Roanoke, Comcast

SportsNet in the mid-Atlantic region, and FoxSports South in the Southeast. The 30-minute show features an action-packed, magazine-style format. With its superior production, animation and videography, it has the look and feel of a national sports telecast. Virginia Tech Sports Today airs from mid-August until mid-March.

IMG College also offers Hokie Playback, a weekly re-broadcast of Virginia Tech football games.

Other advertising and marketing opportunities managed by Virginia Tech IMG Sports Marketing include the state-of-the-art videoscreens ("HokieVision") in both Lane Stadium and Cassell Coliseum, venue signage, ribbon board LED advertising and promotion, pre-game hospitality events and a wide array of print and digital opportunities across all sports.

The company provides a wide variety of sponsorship opportunities for Tech supporters at every level, through not only football and basketball but every other Virginia Tech varsity sport as well.

So, whether your interest is in radio or television media, print, promotions, signage, video board, event impact or digital ... Virginia Tech IMG Sports Marketing is your corporate connection to Virginia Tech athletics.

VIRGINIA TECH IMG

SPORTS NETWORK

Jon Laaser (pronounced “laser”) was officially named “The Voice of the Hokies” on June 23. The Chaska, Minn., native brings a wide range of football, basketball and baseball announcing experience to Blacksburg. He joins Virginia Tech after spending the last four years working as a television and radio broadcaster for VCU basketball. His resume includes work with the Richmond Flying Squirrels, the Double-A affiliate of the San Francisco Giants and television assignments including partnering with analyst John Feinstein on Comcast Sportsnet Washington.

Recognized by his peers as an emerging talent, longtime FOX Sports and Cincinnati Reds broadcaster Thom Brennaman was one of several prominent sports figures who endorsed Laaser along with “Voice of the Minnesota Vikings” Paul Allen and San Francisco Giants general manager Bobby Evans.

Working for Hampton Roads Sports Network in 2014-15, Laaser served as lead play-by-play broadcaster for college, high school football and basketball telecasts featuring schools throughout Virginia. He was also “The Voice of the Buccaneers” for the football and basketball programs of Charleston Southern from 2008-09, in addition to baseball broadcasting duties with the Myrtle Beach Pelicans, which at the time was the Class A Advanced Affiliate of the Atlanta Braves.

His extensive minor league baseball background also includes stints with the Altoona Curve (Pirates AA affiliate), Yakima Bears (Diamondbacks short-season A affiliate), St. Paul Saints (independent) and St. Cloud River Bats (Northwoods League). Laaser’s professional career began in Minnesota with stints working for KFAN Radio in Minneapolis and KXSS Radio in St. Cloud as well with the NFL’s Minnesota Vikings. Laaser is a graduate of Brown College in the Twin Cities.

Mike Burnop, Virginia Tech’s Hall of Fame network analyst, was also provided a multi-year contract extension. Burnop, a former star tight end for the Hokies, enters his 33rd season in the booth as a football analyst. He still holds the Virginia Tech record for receptions in a season by a tight end with 46. Burnop owns New River Office Supply; a business operating in Blacksburg, Pearisburg and Salem, Va.

In addition to his role as analyst, Burnop handles all post-game interviews from Tech’s locker room. He has shown his versatility as a broadcaster by shining as the analyst on Tech’s basketball broadcasts over the years.

Andrew Allegretta is in his fifth season as the assistant director of broadcasting for the Virginia Tech IMG Sports Network. He serves as the play-by-play broadcaster for Virginia Tech’s women’s basketball and baseball teams, anchors the coverage of Tech Olympic sports broadcasts on the Hokies’ digital platforms, and contributes to Virginia Tech football and men’s basketball radio broadcasts. He’s also a contributor to Virginia Tech Sports Today, the network’s weekly regional television program. A native of Yarmouth, Maine, Allegretta graduated from Syracuse University with a degree in broadcast journalism.

WHAT IS A HOKIE?

That’s a frequently asked question in Virginia Tech athletics, and the answer leads all the way back to 1896 when Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College changed its name to Virginia Polytechnic Institute. With the change came the necessity for writing a new cheer, and a contest for that purpose was held by the student body. Senior O.M. Stull won first prize for his “Hokie” yell which is still used today. Later, when asked if “Hokie” had any special meaning, Stull explained the word was solely the product of his imagination and was used only as an attention-getter for his yell. It soon became a nickname for all Virginia Tech teams and those people loyal to Tech athletics. The official school colors – Chicago maroon and burnt orange – also were introduced in 1896. They were chosen because they made a “unique combination” not worn elsewhere at the time.

LU MERRITT oversaw the Virginia Tech Athletic Fund – better known to many as the “Hokie Club” – for more than 20 years before deciding to retire at the end of June.

A native of Roanoke, Virginia, Merritt came to Tech in 1994 after working in the banking industry. His ability to build relationships, honed from years of working in the financial sector and also being a Hokie Rep, served him well. In addition, being a graduate (Class of 1968) and a former student-athlete didn’t hurt either!

Over the course of Merritt’s career at Tech, the scope of athletics fundraising grew by more than 600 percent. Major projects on which he played a key fundraising role included expansions to Lane Stadium and the construction of the Hahn-Hurst Basketball Practice Center, football locker room facility, and the new indoor practice facility.

Merritt received the Lifetime Achievement Award from the National Association of Athletic Development Directors on June 16, 2015, at the organization’s annual convention for his efforts over his career.

Merritt and his wife, Brynda, plan traveling during retirement, but will live in Blacksburg and will remain fixtures at Tech athletics events.

VIRGINIA TECH ATHLETICS COMMUNICATIONS

Media interested in Tech athletics, be it an interview or press credential request, are encouraged to contact the Athletics Communications Office.

Hokie coaches and athletes work closely with the Communications staff in servicing media requests. Please, don't hesitate to give us a call.

All interview requests for Virginia Tech coaches, student-athletes and administrators should be directed to an appropriate member of the Athletics Communications staff.

The Athletics Communications Office is located on the fourth floor of the Jamerson Athletic Center, which is connected to Cassell Coliseum and the Merryman Athletic Center. The office is next to the Bowman Room.

All media members coming to campus during the week need to stop by the Visitor and Undergraduate Admissions Center at 925 Prices Fork Road to obtain a parking pass.

Media will be responsible for paying any fines they incur while on campus.

THE PRESS BOX

The press box at Lane Stadium/Worsham Field comprises seven levels. Newspaper, radio and television reporters work on the fifth level.

The media area of the press box is accessible via elevators Nos. 4 & 5, which are located on the west side, in the south tower.

Admission to the press box is by credential only. Smoking is not allowed in the stands or in any enclosed area of Lane Stadium, including the press box and rest rooms.

JUST VIRGINIA TECH, PLEASE

While the full name of the school is Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, the school is commonly referred to as "Virginia Tech." Founded in 1872, as Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical College, the university changed its name to Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1896. Fans of the athletics department, as well as media covering the Hokies, shortened the name to VPI, but it eventually became Virginia Tech. The "State University" was added in 1970 to bring the official title to what it is today.

Those covering Hokie athletics are asked to refer to the university as simply "Virginia Tech." Virginia Tech University, VPI and SU, VPI&SU, "Vah Tech," VT or VA Tech are not recognized names and should not be used.

MEDIA INFORMATION

REAL-TIME TRANSMISSION

The “real-time” transmission of digital images, audio and data, including live game play-by-play and statistics, of any home game or any Tech-sponsored media event is the exclusive property of Virginia Tech and/or its rights holder(s). “Real-time” is defined as “live continual coverage or description of an event.”

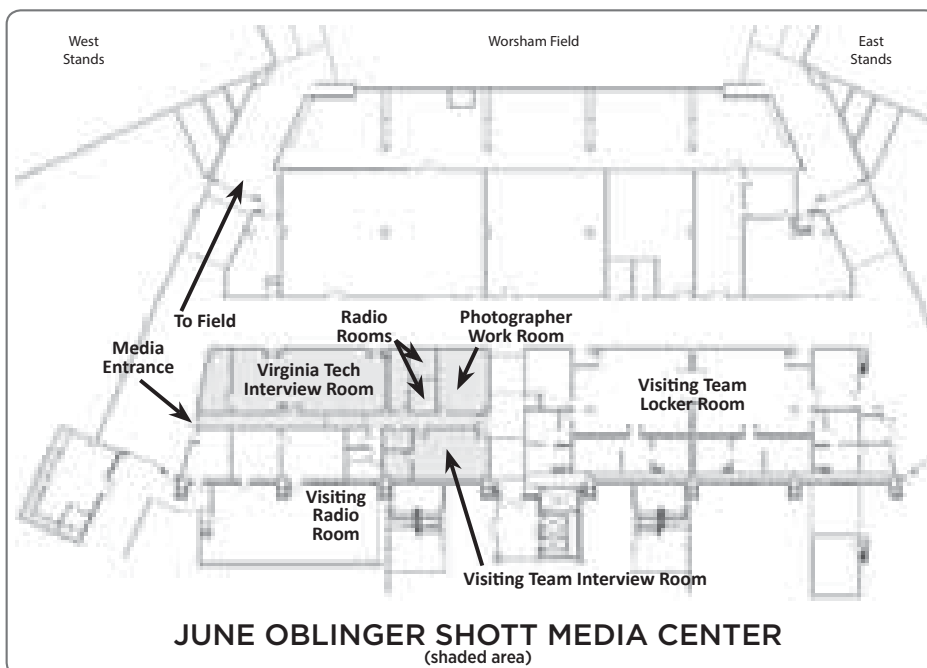

Media members blogging or using Twitter from the press box are subject to all of Virginia Tech’s real-time policies.

The Atlantic Coast Conference has adapted an Internet Real-Time Policy. Virginia Tech adheres to this policy.

RIGHTS RESTRICTION

Virginia Tech is and shall be the sole owner of any and all copyrights, intellectual property rights and proprietary rights for images, sounds and data arising from or during Virginia Tech home athletics contests and Tech-sponsored media events.

The use of photographs, video and/or audio for purposes other than traditional news coverage is forbidden. No redistribution is permitted.

GETTING TO CAMPUS

The campus is located in Blacksburg, Va., about 40 miles southwest of Roanoke, Va. To reach the campus from Interstate 81, take Exit 118-B (Christiansburg) onto U.S. Route 460 West. Follow the 460 Blacksburg Bypass and turn right onto Rt. 314.

BY AIR

Roanoke Regional Airport in Roanoke, Va., is served by major domestic airlines. Limousine services provide transportation between the airport and campus. Private planes may land at the Virginia Tech Airport, on campus.
